THE SHARP SLUMP IN DOLLAR AND STERLING

FRANCE GROWS ANXIOUS

MR. NORMAN'S VISIT TO AMERICA

FRANC TO STAY ON GOLD

Paris, Aug. 27.

The sharp fall in the gold value of the dollar and sterling is causing considerable disquiet among financiers and again there is talk in the air of an abandonment by France of the gold standard.

The consensus of opinion, however, is that France will stick to the gold standard until she is pushed off.

With a gold reserve of 79,62, it is felt that France has nothing to fear from depreciating currencies as the bulk of France's trade is done with her own colonies.

Her greatest currency danger lies in the unbalanced budget, the deficit being somewhere in the region of six milliards of francs.

There are few signs of gold hoarding outside the Bank of France and business is satisfactory if not brisk.

TALK IN U. S.

To-morrow's talk between Mr. Montagu Norman, the Governor of the Bank of England, Mr. Leon Fraser of the Bank of International Settlements, and President Roosevelt is being awaited with interest.

The object of the conference has been kept a secret, but it is rumoured that further devaluation of sterling and the dollar is contemplated, prior to stabilisation.—Reuter.

AIR LINE TO MANILA

SURVEY FLIERS RETURNING

LEAVING FOR HONGKONG

Manila, Aug. 26.

A flight from Iloilo to Zamboanga, then back to Iloilo and Manila in less than 12 hours was accomplished yesterday by H. M. Bixby, W. S. Grooch and William Elmer, Pan-American fliers who are looking over possible landing places for an air service in the Philippines.

The fliers used their Sikorsky seaplane which brought them here from Shanghai and Hongkong, on their flight yesterday. At no time was the plane ever in danger, Mr. Grooch, the technical man and pilot of the party, indicated shortly after their return to Manila last night.

The trio left Iloilo at 6.45 a.m., arrived at Zamboanga at 9.15, took off again in a quarter of an hour, returned to Iloilo at 12.30 p.m., took off in about 50 minutes for Manila, and landed on Cavite beach at 7.25 p.m. From Cavite they motored to Manila, reaching the Manila Hotel where they are stopping, shortly before 6 p.m.

HEAVY RAIN

On the return trip to Iloilo the fliers encountered heavy rain off the coast of Negros. Mr. Grooch explained he had to fly low to be safe. During the flight from Iloilo to Manila, as they followed the direct route they encountered heavy black clouds on the northern end of Panay. Mr. Grooch had to pilot the plane toward the sea, going back to their course after several miles.

Mr. Grooch indicated that his report on the result of his investigation will embrace the prospective airline between Hongkong and Manila down to Zamboanga. He said there are more than a dozen safe places for landing in case of an emergency all along the route. He found better landing places in the south than along the western coast of Luzon.

RETURNING TO HONGKONG

The fliers expect to be in Manila until September 1, when they will fly back to Hongkong via Santiago Island, on the western end of Lingayon Gulf. On the crossing to Hongkong, Mr. Grooch said, they would try to look over the

BREACH OF PROMISE ACTION

FILIPINO GIRL'S CLAIM AGAINST HOTEL MUSICIAN

HOSPITAL DISCOVERY

An 18-years old Filipino girl's claim for $1,000 for breach of promise to marry opened before the Puisne Judge, Mr. R. E. Lindsell, at the Supreme Court this morning. It is the first case of the kind ever to come before a Hongkong Court.

The parties were Miss Rosa Bautista, of 578, Nathan Road, Kowloon, and Lorenzo Rull, a musician at the Peninsula Hotel living at 29B, Peking Building, Kowloon.

Mr. H. L. Denny appeared for plaintiff and Mr. Leo D'Almada represented defendant.

Outlining the case for the applicant, Mr. Denny said: Your Lordship will see from the statement of claim that plaintiff is claiming damages for breach of a promise of marriage. To support that she must prove the promise and prove that it has not been kept.

REFUSAL TO MARRY.

It is clear that it has not been kept because his solicitors wrote stating the defendant never had and has now no intention of marrying the plaintiff.

Plaintiff is a girl of 18 living with her mother, brother and sister at the Orient Tobacco Factory in Nathan Road. Her mother will state that she has been very careful with her and that she is a girl of good character.

Early in February this year, she was introduced by a mutual friend to defendant. They became on good terms and she alleges that he promised to marry her and that after that intimacy took place. She claims that he is the father of her child.

When she discovered that she was in this condition—she apparently did not discover it until she went to the hospital in June feeling unwell—she told her mother and they went to see defendant.

PLAINTIFF'S PROMISE.

He again made corroborative statements and suggested that they might marry later. That will be merely corroboration because we cannot prove a case of this sort on the uncorroborated statements of plaintiff.

The first promise to marry was on February 5, it is alleged. In view of that, plaintiff, who was working in Harriman's Silk Store left her employment the day following.

Plaintiff's mother has been working as Forewoman at the Orient Tobacco Factory for about 25 years and is a person whose word is entitled to be believed as much as defendant's.

PLAINTIFF'S EVIDENCE.

Rosa Bautista, a pretty girl then took her place in the witness box and gave evidence in a very composed manner. She spoke English sufficiently well to be able to dispense with the interpreter who had been especially engaged for the proceedings.

VISITS TO PEKING BLDG.

She told the court she was accustomed to visit a Mrs. Sivanni who lived on the same floor as defendant in Peking Building.

Mr. Denny: How did you get to know defendant?

Witness: Mr. Ortega introduced me.

Did you become friends with him?—Yes he promised to marry me.

After you left the Silk Store did you keep company with him?—Yes.

And did you become on intimate terms?—Yes.

When did you first suspect that your condition was not quite right?—After five months. I went to the Kwong Wo Hospital where I was told I had a baby five months old.

After you told your mother did you go and see defendant?—Yes. He said he would marry me when I gave birth to the baby.

Did you give Mr. Rull your photograph?—Yes, because he asked for it.

STILL WILLING.

Between February and the time in June did he still say he was going to marry you?—He continually said he would marry me.

You are still willing to marry him I suppose?—Yes.

And before this case was brought you instructed your solicitor to ask again if the defendant would fulfil his promise?—Yes.

This concluded plaintiff's evidence in chief.

Mr. D'Almada: What did defendant say then?—He said: 'I will marry you when the baby is born' but my mother would not hear of it.

DEFENDANT'S DENIAL.

Did he tell your mother that he was not the father of any child you might have?—At first, he denied he was the father.

His Lordship: So when you went with your mother to see him he said I am not the father and also that he would marry you when the child was born?—Yes.

Mr. D'Almada: On the second occasion you went with your mother did he say 'I am not going to marry you'?—No. The second time he said he was the father and would marry me.

I put it to you that he never at any time promised to marry you?

CASANOVA "NOISE" CONVICTION

Appeal to be Heard Next Month

The appeal of the Casanova Dancing Institute against the conviction in the Kowloon Magistracy some time ago will be heard in the Supreme Court on September 11.

DATE FIXED.

He did promise to marry me.

Do you still wish to marry him?—Yes.

His Lordship: Before June he didn't say when he would marry you?—No, he never fixed a date.

Why not?—He just promised but did not fix a date.

Asked by His Lordship why she did not ask defendant to fix it, complainant did not reply.

Did you ever tell any one that he had promised to marry you before you went to the hospital in June?—No.

Why didn't you tell your mother?—Because I was afraid she might scold me for being engaged to be married.

Why should she scold you?—I cannot explain.

Can you give no reason for not telling anyone?—No.

FELL IN LOVE.

Cross-examined by Mr. D'Almada senior, witness said: I went often to Mr. Sivanni's flat to see his

MOTOR CAR CODE

SIGN BY PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT

SIGNED BY PRESIDENT SYSTEM.

New York, Aug. 27.

It is announced at Hyde Park, President Roosevelt's summer residence, that the President has signed the motor industry code.

It is understood that the code represents a compromise between the employers and the men and that the Ford Motor Company refuses to budge from its attitude on non-participation.

The code provides for hours of labour ranging from 35 hours a week to 48 hours a week, with a minimum wage varying from 40 to 43 cents an hour.

Price-fixing is not mentioned in the code.

LABOUR CONDITIONS.

The manufacturers are permitted to hire, promote or pay off their workers on merits, regardless of their affiliation to any organisation. This provision the labour organisers have accepted on the understanding that it does not infringe the collective bargaining clause and with the reservation that its inclusion in any other code will be opposed.

EIGHTEEN INDUSTRIES.

It is now stated that fifteen million of the nation's workers are now working under code conditions and that eighteen industries are now "self-governed under Federal supervision."

The National Recovery Administration estimates that two million voluntary re-employment agreements have been signed.—Reuter.

AIRMEN IN DISTRESS

NORWEGIAN SHIP RESCUES

TWO JAPANESE PLANES LOST

Manila, Aug. 26.

The lives of five Japanese fliers participating in the recent Japanese naval manoeuvres were saved from watery graves by the m.s. Tai Yang, Norwegian freighter, which arrived in Manila yesterday.

The fliers were taken from two aeroplanes in mid-Pacific after their planes had run out of gas, according to Captain Ole Jorgensen, master of the vessel.

"We left San Pedro on August 3," said Captain Jorgensen. "Nothing unusual happened until August 18 at about 5:25 p.m. when two Japanese planes, Nos. 316 and 317, began circling alarmingly near the ship. This caused a little excitement on board because we had seen the Japanese manoeuvres. Our position at the time was latitude 23 degrees 13 minutes north and longitude 148 degrees and 6 minutes east, in the Pacific Ocean."

"We had no idea what the trouble was and thought that the fliers were merely trying to identify the ship and get its name. In order to show our nationality I had the Norwegian flag hoisted. As soon as the flag was hoisted, one of the planes came nearer and dropped a note, or rather two notes. One was in English and read: 'No fuel please relieve, while the other was in Japanese and evidently meant the same thing.' Captain Jorgensen declared.

"As soon as I read the note I immediately stopped the ship and gave four blasts which was a signal for all hands to the lifeboats. Meanwhile the planes, which were not seaplanes, landed in the water. My crew responded to my signal instantly and within a few minutes a life boat was sent out to the planes. There were three men in one plane and two in the other. The fliers asked us to stay alongside them until help could be secured from the Japanese squadron but as it was getting dark we convinced them that it would be safer to come aboard our ship which they consented to do.

CREWS RESCUED.

"While the Japanese fliers were being picked up our telegraph operator was calling Japanese warships. We received no answer for about 45 minutes and then only after we used the safety signal twice. At last we got a response from the carrier Ryugo and later from the destroyer Kiso, which announced it would come to our position immediately.

PLANES SINK.

"While we waited for the destroyer to come, the commander of the two planes asked us to help his men try to keep the planes from sinking until the warship arrived. We attempted to save the planes but one of them soon sank. We then radioed the commander of the warship stating that one plane had sunk and asking if we should attempt to save the other plane, if possible. The reply was: 'No. Do not want the plane'."

"The Japanese warship finally arrived at 8 o'clock, or almost two and a half hours after we had contacted with it. Two officers came aboard and after inquiring as to the ship's name, home port, and nationality they thanked us for saving the fliers and relieved us of the rescued men. Captain Jorgensen, who is making his first trip as captain of the Tai Yang, has in his possession a little rubber ball to which is attached two pieces of cloth, one red and the other white, about three inches wide and a foot long, the device used by the Japanese in dropping their distress signal. One of the pieces of cloth has a pocket sewed on to it which contains the notes.

GLORIFYING YOURSELF

You Owe Yourself Foot Comfort

By Alicia Hart

Do you feel that you can't walk another step this summer?

Some women who have always worn pumps or delicate little sandals with high heels find tremendous relief from getting into flat-heeled sports things on hot days.

There is no question that heels make a lot of difference. You can even get medium-heeled oxfords that go well with summer things and find them a boon, if you are unwilling to get into brogues. Try them, anyway. You can get a pair for so little this summer.

Keep a pair of comfortable, easy shoes in the office. Change into them the minute you come in from the street (always carefully putting shoe trees into the shoes you take off). Then, change into a third pair when you get home. And for your own personal information, if you take off your stockings, too, and don beach sandals for easy comfortable home-wear, your feet will benefit by it.

If you are over 35, get a half size longer shoes the next time you buy them. It is sensible to face the fact that your feet do get larger. Many a woman limps along without knowing that she has short shoes. Width makes far less difference in the long run than length does. It is length that cramps the bones of your feet which affect your entire body and disposition.

And if your feet still hurt, see an orthopedic specialist!

because he was at the airport. And Newt was away. That didn't leave anybody but Nick and he wasn't allowed to go with Nick.

Without Companionship

The quarter was his to do as he liked with. He knew the idea was to get him out of the way. Maybe he'd get Nick anyway—he hated to go to shows alone. Or maybe he'd go to the airport on the street car.

A deep disappointment needed satisfying. Bill was out with his father, Newt was away with his father, and—oh, everybody seemed to be doing things with fathers. Between the houses across the street he could see Professor Berger explaining something to his big son. Something about a star—he could see them pointing.

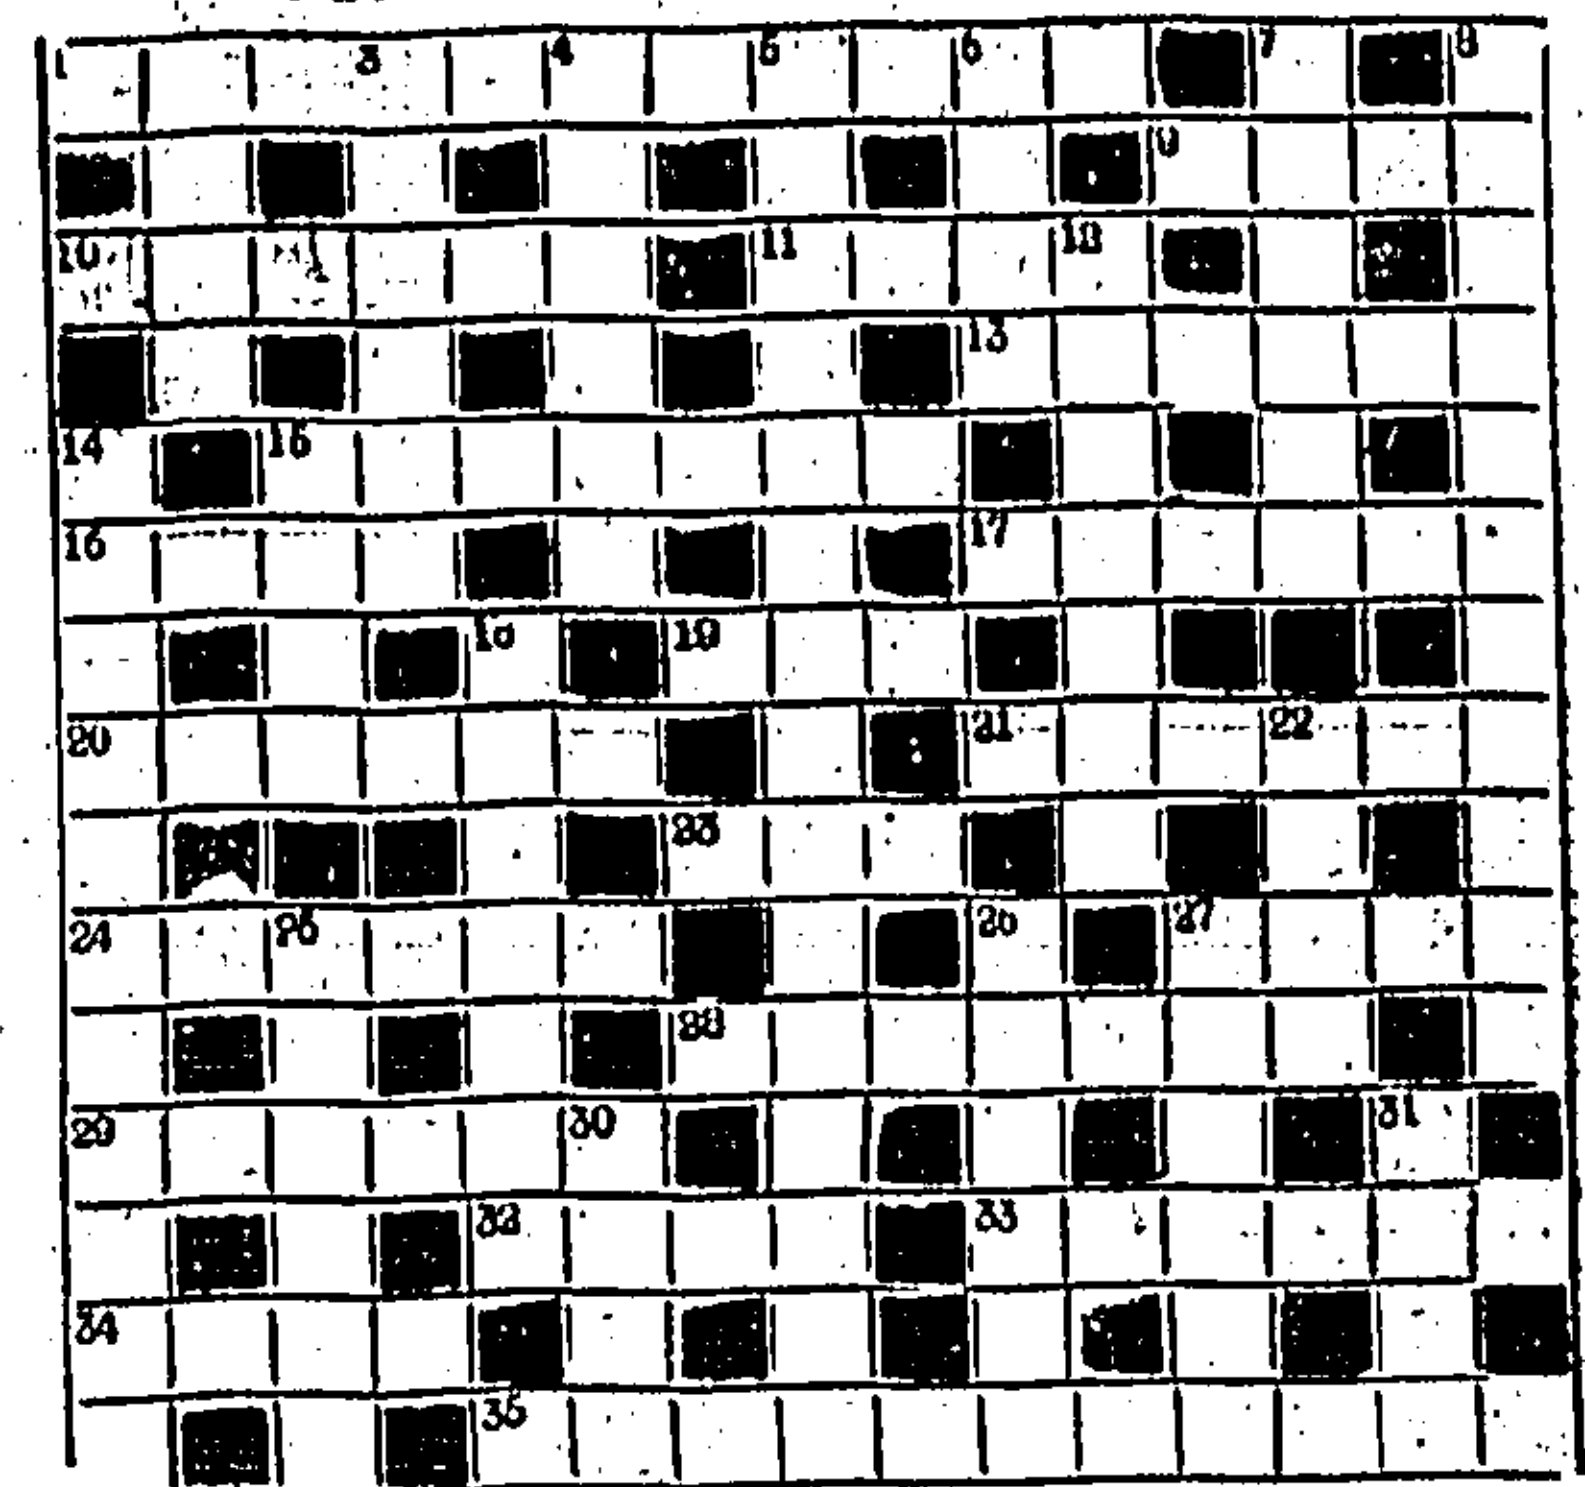

Lonely—that's what he was tonight. He didn't want Nick—the big smarty! He didn't want to see the show. He didn't want anything.

He circled the house. The yard was baked and hot. "I suppose I ought to be a real good boy and sprinkle the grass and weed the petunias!" he said in a high mocking voice. He kicked a chair. Then he pretended to follow a blackbird behind the bank of aspen.

He threw himself down on the ground and cried.

He heard his father locking up. "Oh, he's all right," came his voice. "He was just working up for some dough. That's all. Kids are never satisfied."

SCOTT'S Emulsion brings health and strength at all ages of life. Contented and happy are little ones who are nourished by SCOTT'S Emulsion.

For the LOVE of EVE by Lucy Walling

BEGIN HERE TO-DAY

EVE BAYLESS, pretty assistant to EARLE BARNES, advertising manager of Bixby's department store, actually married DICK HADFIELD, a construction superintendent. Dick opposes her continued employment and pleads for a home but Eve is determined to go on working.

The same day Eve learns that she is to be sent to New York by the store and must leave that night. She does not tell Dick this news until they are at dinner. He sees her board her train.

In New York Eve meets FRED CARTER, dress buyer for Bixby's, who introduces her to THURGOOD REEVE. Reeve is much attracted by Eve. He angers her by trying to kiss her in a taxi.

At the end of a week Eve returns to Lake City. Dick meets her and takes her to the fashionable Hotel Miramar. They are about to go down to dinner when a woman telephones, asking for Dick. He leaves immediately saying something has happened "on the job" and does not return all night.

CHAPTER VI

It was nearly time for Eve to start to the office when Dick returned next morning.

All her anger and suspicion were lost in concern when she saw him. She ran to him contitely and clung to him. "Oh, Dick, what happened?" she cried. His clothes were grimy and ruined. His shoulders sagged with weariness.

"Somebody tried to wreck the foundation," he explained briefly. "Used a crude bomb."

Eve's eyes widened. "Rack-others?" she asked.

"I don't think so. A man was fired last week—a sudden, spiteful chap. He's the one they're hunting for. We worked all night trying to get at the bottom of the mischief and trying to estimate the damage. How about some breakfast?"

Solicitously Eve started the hot water running in the tub for Dick's bath and ordered breakfast sent up.

Over their coffee Dick told her of the night's work and she learned, among other things, that the woman who had telephoned the night before was Mrs. Hall, who owned a barbecue stand across the street. She had overheard conversation which led her to suspect trouble.

"I should have called you," Dick said regretfully. "But things were in such a mess and by the time I could get around to it, it was long past midnight and I hoped you were asleep. You see we had to make sure there was nothing more that could cause damage."

"But you might have been hurt!" Eve was remembering that while Dick was risking his life in the interests of his employers she had been doubting him. She must make that up to him—never hurt him by letting him know.

Eve reached the office half an hour late. She hoped this tardiness would not come to Mr. Bixby's notice. He always was at his desk early and expected everyone else to be prompt. On Eve's desk—the desk that had been Alice Marshall's—was a note which read:

"Memo to Miss Bayless from Mr. Barnes:

"After you correct proofs of today's ad, please see Miss McElroy and get details for Basement hat sale Tuesday. Select six or eight hats for sketching. Make 2-col. layout for Press and 2-col. for Times and write copy and heads to fit. See layout on my desk for depth of ad and approximate size of cut."

"Send proof of your column in to-day's Press to Mr. Bixby for his O.K."

Eve read this through a second time. Basement hats! Well, they were starting her at the bottom, literally. She had taken it for granted that there would be a new girl to fill the place made vacant by her promotion. A new girl to write relatively unimportant bits of copy and do the errands that could not be trusted to Charles, the office boy. But there was no time to waste on injured feelings. Two messenger boys entered at that moment, both in great haste.

"Anything for the Times?" asked one of them. Eve went into Barnes' office to see. There was a manilla envelope on his desk marked, "Times—Classified."

The boy snatched it from her hand and was off. Eve turned to the other lad. "Anybody here by the name of Miss Eve Bayless?" he inquired. He carried a box from a florist's shop.

Flowers! Eve wondered if Earle Barnes could have sent them in honour of her promotion. Perhaps even Mr. Bixby. There were six yellow rosebuds, long-stemmed with glossy, deep green leaves. The card in the tiny envelope read, "Love from Dick."

Eve brushed one of the fragrant buds with her lips and with a topaz bar pin fastened it below the collar of her frock. The other five buds she arranged in a pottery vase that she kept on her desk.

Arlene Smith and Marya Vlad entered the office together. Arlene was modern, inclined to be slangy. She wore the extremes in fashion and wore them well. Her dark eyes were shaded by an intriguing long black fringe and her soft black hair was kept sleek through weekly visits to the beauty shop. Marya was a pretty young Bohemian girl whose hair was parted above a broad white forehead and whose gentle dignity gave evidence of the careful training to which her old world mother held firmly.

The girls showered Eve with questions about her trip to New York and exclaimed rapturously over the gifts she had brought them—a dram of jasmine perfume in a crystal bottle for Marya and a new lipstick for Arlene.

Eve corrected the proofs and sent them to the buyers of the departments represented for their approval. Then she went to the basement hat shop to discuss measurements and prices and selected several hats for sketching. "Please send these up at once," she said. "Miss Vlad wants them right away."

"I'm sorry but I haven't any one to send now," Janet McElroy replied crisply. "All the girls on the floor are busy and there isn't an errand boy in sight. I'd bring them up myself but I have to go to the receiving room to look over a new shipment that just came in."

Eve stacked the hats into an

unwieldy pyramid and carried them to the office herself via the freight elevator. She regarded this task as beneath the dignity of her position and did not wish to be seen by anyone who knew the buyers she suspected, did not feel about this as she did. One of them was likely to appear in the advertising office at any time with a great armful of new merchandise. Even Mr. Bixby could be seen at times balancing a stack of handboxes or carrying an evening gown over his arm. Mr. Bixby believed firmly in the dignity of any useful, honest labour. At staff meetings, he frequently enlarged on that theme.

Eve entered the office and dropped the hats on a table near Marya's drawing board. A girl she had never seen was sitting at her desk—the desk that had been Alice Marshall's. A small, blond girl with round, blue eyes.

"This is Miss Allen, Miss Bayless," Marya said. "She's going to have your old place."

Eve smiled and offered her hand. "How do you do, Miss Allen. I hope you will like it here as much as the rest of us do."

Languidly the young woman withdrew a limp hand from Eve's friendly clasp. "Oh, I know I'm going to adore it here," she drawled, taking Eve's measure with a hostility that she scarcely took the trouble to veil.

Eve brought a layout sheet, a ruler, sharpened pencil and a piece of art gum to the desk where the new girl was seated. Mona Allen made no move to vacate her place. "That will be your desk over there, Miss Allen," Eve said, indicating a smaller, shabbier desk stacked with newspapers and merchandise. "I haven't had time to clear it out because I've been away for a week. But I'll get my things out of the drawers by the time you return from lunch and I'll have Charles put those newspapers and that merchandise somewhere else."

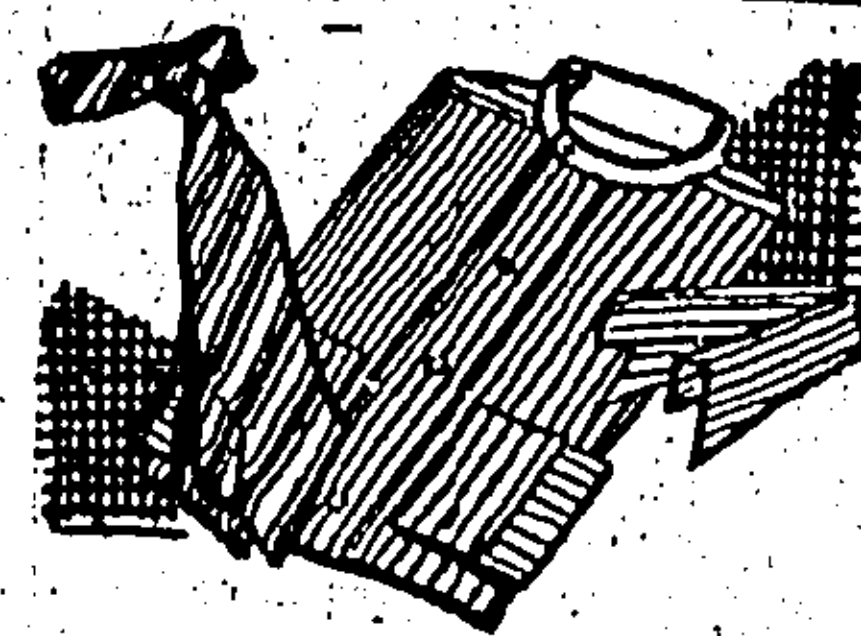

The new girl surveyed Eve with cool impudence. "Oh, I think there must be some mistake," she drawled. "I am sure this is the desk Mr. Barnes meant me to have."

Eve thought rapidly. Miss Allen, she suspected, was trying to "put something over" on her. But Eve had no way of knowing what Barnes had said or implied. Fortunately Marya interrupted to ask Eve's advice about the sketch she was making. They went to

"I KILLED HER"

PATRICIO REMEDIOS
 CONFESSES

Shanghai, Aug. 26.
 "I plead guilty. I got angry and killed her in my room with an icebreaker."

In these words Jose Patricio
 dos Remedios confessed to the murder of Choy Ling, his common law wife, whose body was found in a trunk aboard the N.Y.K. liner,
 Shanghai Maru, on August 7.

The sensational confession was made this morning at the Portuguese Consulate General.

Remedios said he had killed
 Choy Ling on the night of August
 4. Late next morning he placed the dead body in a black trunk
 which he had taken aboard the Shanghai Maru.

Patricio completely exonerated
 his brother, Jose Eulalio dos Remedios, who, he said, did not know of the crime until late on August 5. He had not helped to place the body in the trunk or
 put the trunk aboard the liner.

Patricio confessed in low, calm
 tones and signed the confession
 firmly and unwaveringly.—Reuter.

WORLD CRISIS A WAY OUT

By FREDERICK COPE, A.M.I.E.E.

Mr. Cope's striking articles on the world economic crisis
 which were recently published in the Hongkong Telegraph
 are now available in pamphlet form.

One of the features, repaying study, is the close similarity between the plan of reform suggested by this local writer,
 and certain aspects of the Roosevelt recovery programme.
 The author's ideas are naturally far too advanced for active promotion at the present time, but they are particularly interesting in view of the fact that President Roosevelt, in striking out on a path of his own, has travelled in the same direction.

The pamphlet is one of forty-four pages and can be obtained from the South China Morning Post at a cost of—

KOWLOON WEDDING.

DAUGHTER OF FORMER CHIEF INSPECTOR OF POLICE

Two well known local people were married at St. Andrew's Church, Kowloon, on Saturday afternoon, when Miss Joan Marian Paterson, the daughter of Mr. H. J. Paterson, former Chief Inspector of the Hongkong Police, and Mrs. Paterson, became the bride of Mr. Leslie James Stevenson, son of Mr. Richard John Stevenson, late Chief Electrical Engineer of the P.W.D., Hongkong, and Mrs. R. J. Stevenson, of "South View" Grey Hill, Jersey, C.I.

The Rev. W. Walton Rogers officiated.

The bride was charmingly attired in a gown, cut on classic lines, by "Eunice", of ivory chiffon and rose patterned silk lace, delightfully trimmed with tiny rings of orange blossoms. Her head was encircled by a coronet of orange-blossoms, from which fell a long, beautifully embroidered Brussels net veil, forming a train. She carried a sheaf of gladioli.

The bride was given away by her father.

The bridesmaids, the Misses Joyce Paterson (bride's sister), Barbara Budden and Betty Brewer wore dainty georgette gowns in orchid, primrose and love-in-the-mist, cut on similar lines to that of the bride, trimmed with chiffon rosebuds. Lace mittens and berets wreathed with chiffon roses were also worn, and each carried a floral fan to harmonize with her frock, completing an unusually charming ensemble.

The bride's mother wore a charming "Eunice" gown of wine red lace with smart hat to match and carried a bouquet of deep cream gladioli.

Mr. O. F. Hamilton, of the Indo-China Steam Navigation Co.

FLOOD. HAVOC

DAMAGE

Nanking, Aug. 27.
The Yellow River flood has now assumed frightful dimensions. Refugees in "Western Shantung" alone reach 3,000,000 and over 800 villages have been inundated.

This estimate is given by the Civil Governor of Shantung who yesterday made an aerial survey of the flooded area.

Anxiety is felt for the safety of foreigners living outside Kai-feng.

In the event of the dykes breaking, it has been arranged that signal guns will be fired, so that foreigners and villagers may escape to the city where, it is hoped, the city wall will temporarily prevent the inundation of the city.—Reuter.

Tsinan in Danger.

Tsinan, Aug. 26.
Tsinan's half-million inhabitants are growing every moment more apprehensive, as a rise of only two inches in the level of the Yellow River will mean an incalculable disaster.

Fervent efforts are being made to bolster up the defences against floods.

Shansi Distress.

Nanking, Aug. 26.
Over 70 districts in Shansi are affected by the floods.—Reuter.

Ltd., with whom the bridegroom is also employed, was best man. A reception was subsequently held at the Police Training School and later the couple left for the Repulse Bay Hotel where the honeymoon is being spent. The bride's going away dress was a becoming ensemble of hyacinth blue and dove, with a large picture hat trimmed in pastel shades. Shoes bag and gloves were in tone.

NATION GRATEFUL

GERMANY'S GIFT TO
VON HINDENBURG

Berlin, Aug. 27.
The nineteenth anniversary of President von Hindenburg's signal victory at Tannenberg was celebrated to-day at the foot of the Tannenberg memorial in East Prussia.

The occasion was remarkable for the honours paid to Germany's president by Nazi leaders.

Capt. Goering, on behalf of Prussia, presented President Hindenburg with the large estate of Langenau and the forest of Preussen, both of which adjoin the Hindenburg family estate at Neudeck, while Herr Hitler announced that the combined estates would be exempt from taxation as long as a male member of the von Hindenburg family was in possession.

President Hindenburg was visibly moved. He pledged his life to the service of the Fatherland.

He recalled that it was "his Imperial Master" who entrusted him with the liberation of East Prussia.—Reuter.

HERTZOG'S APPEAL.

Opposed To Anti-German Boycott.

Pretoria, Aug. 26.
Suggestions of an anti-German boycott in South Africa and the possibility of an anti-Nazi outbreak in South-west Africa have prompted General Hertzog, the Premier, to appeal officially to South Africans to realise the gravity of the German situation and to abstain from doing or saying anything likely to harm the Union.

Germany was actually in the throes of revolution and history's lessons showed that in such times the innocent suffered with the guilty.—Reuter.

BRITAIN AND JAPAN

Hongkong's vital interest in the preservation of friendly relations between Britain and Japan is, perhaps, sufficiently obvious to render unnecessary any emphasis on the very real concern we have in the outcome of the forthcoming cotton textile conference in India. It is no longer possible or politic to conceal the fact that those relations are far from happy to-day. Malicious propaganda has played a part in the creation of a delicate situation, but fundamentally the causes are deeper-rooted. Ever since the termination of the Anglo-Japanese Alliance in 1922, we have been drifting apart, a process which has been most unfortunately quickened in the last two years, first by the Manchuria adventure and secondly by the so-called Anglo-Japanese economic war, the one cause of friction being largely the outcome of the other. Japan, deprived of an outlet for her manufactures in China, has been developing new markets with an energy and enterprise richly deserving of the success achieved—we cannot be honest and not acknowledge it. In the process, Japanese merchants have entered into intensive competition with British goods in British colonies and Dominions. It was natural enough. Markets were sought where entry was most easily obtained, and for that reason the British Empire acted like a magnet. The reaction was equally predictable. Threatened British industries demanded protection and in certain instances steps have been taken to lessen the power of Japanese competition. If this can be termed economic war, it is purely defensive campaign as far as Britain is concerned. But Japan, gripped in a wave of ultra-patriotism, could not fail to interpret India's new tariffs, for instance, otherwise than as a sign of hostility to Japan. Nothing is farther from the truth, but

NOTES OF THE DAY

THE PRESIDENT'S APPEAL

Victory is to be had by pulling together. This, essentially, is the import of President Roosevelt's message to the United States on economic recovery. For a long time it has been reasonably clear that America could pull itself out of depression and into at least a fair amount of business activity at any time if ways could only be found to start all the machinery at once. Many were ready to start if only they knew others would start. Hundreds of employers were willing to restore employment and wages if they could be sure that other industries would similarly enlarge their pay rolls. Millions of workers would spend more freely the wages in hand when they could feel sure next week's wages would meet next week's need. Hence the programme adopted by the President and the formulation of codes.

NEIGHBOURLINESS

The essence of genuine recovery plans is that prosperity will come on a sound basis when men generally, whether employers, employees, farmers, storekeepers, investors or consumers, are willing, even glad, to give full value for what they receive. Narrow, mean grasping after selfish advantage must be renounced. Human considerations must be put ahead of certain inhuman so-called economic laws. That is the burden of President Roosevelt's appeal for the "home and community" spirit. In the deeper analysis the important thing about the recovery programme for better wages and hours in industry—and the reason why it can be expected to succeed—is not because it squares with any particular economic theory or because it offers any particular mechanics of money flow, but because it embodies and expresses a higher degree of economic justice between worker and capitalist and between competing producers than has prevailed amid the unsifted rapacities of laissez-faire.

GOODWILL

But it needs good will and good intentions to implement it. If American business men concentrate their attention upon methods of evading the requirements of the codes, instead of fitting their businesses to them, a breakdown must come. The response to the appeal will be watched with the keenest interest throughout the world. If President Roosevelt succeeds, there will be a radical revision of ideas regarding what is possible in the present era in the direction of developing ideals into practice.

NEW YORK MENTALITY

Meanwhile, Wall Street seems to have learned no lesson from its recent humiliation. It has resumed gambling on rumour and fantastic hope, and the get-rich-quickers are determined once more to regain the honourable rank of million-dollar men—with the inevitable result. It must be a depressing spectacle for Mr. Roosevelt to find the material on which his hopes depend so volatile, so trivial, and so self-absorbed. There is not the smallest ground for optimism on the present scale. Commodity prices are being forced up, a small proportion of the unemployed is about to be reabsorbed by expensive expedients. Ergo, the boom is at hand and the crisis past and a good time coming for the live-wires. It is worse than a crime, it is child's play; and to-day New York has less claim than any capital in civilization to be treated seriously as a centre of international finance.

there have been instances of forced sales at unremunerative prices and roles in certain lines have roused suspicion that the marketing is Government-subsidised, but there is equally no doubt that 95 per cent. of Japan's export trade is conducted on a profitable basis, and that most of the criticism of Japanese competition will not stand analysis. If there had been an abnormal export campaign the yen could not have depreciated to the extent it has. Neither does it follow that if action is taken to prevent a man from buying a 2/- Japanese article, he will be in a position to pay 4/6 for a similar British article. There is a strong case on both sides and a solution of the problem created will certainly not be easy. A very great responsibility rests upon the delegates who will shortly assemble in India. Success will depend upon the spirit in which they enter upon

By ROBERT J. CROMIE

EDITOR AND OWNER, THE
"VANCOUVER SUN"

IF there is one country in the world to-day which has found a real job to do and is wholeheartedly doing that job that country is Russia.

I compliment Russia's leaders and I congratulate Russia's people for realising the wisdom and philosophy in the thought that "blessed is the man or country who has found his work."

However one may disagree with part of their technique, no fair-minded person could visit Russia and come away without feeling deep respect for the conception and directness of Government policy and without being impressed with the enthusiasm and pride which the Russian people show in putting their plans into effect.

There is under way in Russia one of the world's greatest booms. It is the same kind of a boom that England enjoyed from 1850 to 1900 when England's industries and world trade were developing.

It is the kind of boom that built California's great cities with their fruit and poultry co-operative and farm associations and tourist trade into the bargain. Scarcely said that California's rapid growth was unsound; that it wouldn't last. But California had the goods: she had rich soil production, oil, warm climate and a large, wealthy population in America to sell to.

Russia has the goods: she has twice the black soil acreage of the United States, she has coal, oil, lumber, both cold and semi-tropical climates and one hundred and sixty million of her own population to cater to.

Russia's boom will last anyway for 20 to 30 years because the only thing that limits rapid progress and growth is resources and desires. Russia has both. Russia's industrial and soil output to-day, compared with 20 years ago, is phenomenal; yet because of education into higher living standards for the masses and because emphasis for the moment is being put on heavy industries, Russia's appetites and desires for foods and goods is away ahead of her ability to satisfy them.

Russia's educative and economic plans will for years and years keep her people's desires ahead of their ability to supply those—increasing—appetites. That is why Russia is to be envied.

That is why her business and growth are bound to boom while we in North America and England and other parts of Europe retrogress and stand still.

I feel that the principle of capitalism is a sound one, but capitalism as we have over-emphasised it in the United States and Canada and England curtails production and distribution and thereby prevents the growth of appetites and desires. Where our economy is so wrong is that, as I see it, we emphasise the preservation and turnover of capital instead of emphasising the turnover of goods.

China and India can only in part emulate Russia. India's huge population of 325 million people, living on a dry, hot, inhospitable soil, condemns India to very low living standards. China has the soil but lacks the leadership and political organisation and discipline to conceive and to get things done as Russia is now doing.

A GLOWING FUTURE.

If Canada and England and other nations wish to share in Russia's boom the only way is to work through credits and trade that Russia shall not be compelled to dump on to the world market goods and food that could be consumed at home.

With her business growth ahead of her I would say that Russia is the safest credit bet available in the world to-day. As a business man or as a nation I should feel more comfortable having money coming to me from Russia than from any other place on the globe.

Russia has virility, has ability and Russians have tremendous pride in the achievements and obligations of their new regime.

THE SPORTING SPIRIT.

One cannot say this of the many existing Governments and existing debts.

In Canada and the United States we have 12 millions unemployed. While physical suffering is unnecessary, and there is little of it, there is tremendous mental strain and uncertainty about the future. Especially is this true among boys and girls coming out of schools and colleges.

The blame for this is with our leaders, who so far have been unable to conceive a society and an economy that will fit in with our country, our resources, our technology, and with growing world trends. Leaders everywhere must see that conceptions and economies which even 20 years ago were ideal might to-day be hopelessly out of date and useless.

I came to Russia expecting to see depressed and starving people. The day I landed in Moscow was Derby Day.

Fifty thousand people were enjoying horse racing, cheering the winners, placing bets, having drinks and lunches just like any horse racing crowd in America or England.

It is true the clothes and food were not our standard, but the spirit and enjoyment were.

That same evening I went to a Turkey-Russia football game and saw 50,000 young attractive, wholesome and fine-mannered people. Did they enjoy that game? I met the players and the team captains and they were exactly like any of our own sport players, except that they have "thumbed down" the slightest evidence of commercialism in sport. No player can be bonussed or paid or in any way remunerated.

"Our sport is, and is going to stay, strictly amateur," said the Russian football captain. Receipts from that one game totalled over

The Very Idea! HELL BELOW

By Edward "Angel-faco" Kelly

EIGHTY tons of bombs! We hate to think what would have happened at the Kowloon fire last week if they had exploded.

Probably the Peninsula Hotel, the Y. M. C. A., and the Empress of Asia would have been blown to smithereens.

Worse still, we may have been blown to smithereens, for we were there.

Imagine the horror of our Public if anything had happened to us. What would have happened to the Telegraph? No wonder the Editor has warned us that we must be more careful in future.

Anyway, just for the purpose of showing you what would have happened if those bombs had exploded we are publishing the reports we would have sent to the Telegraph:

(Special to "Telegraph")

(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1931. Received, Aug. 28, 12.20 p.m.)

Paradise, Aug. 28.

We are now in Heaven. We were met at the Golden Gate by the Paradise Philharmonic Harp Band, and an official welcome was extended on behalf of the Government by His Excellency the O. A. G., Sir Gabriel.

Upon receipt of our halo we requested an interview with the Colonial Secretary, and have elicited the information that the warm welcome we received was extended in view of the fact that we are the first Hongkong visitor yet to arrive.

Pearly Gates, Aug. 29.

Mr. Edward Kelly, a recent visitor from Hongkong, has lodged a protest with the government, following the refusal of the Celestial book-keeper, St. Peter, to extend credit facilities.

Close upon the heels of this crisis comes the report that owing to the shortage of water, the authorities have decided to impose restrictions from September 1. It is hoped that the gigantic Shing Mun "dash" will be completed next year, thus ending once and for all the acute water problem.

Reuter.
(Heavenly word for "dam")

Heaven, Aug. 30.

Mr. Edward Kelly, the distinguished visitor from Hongkong, as a protest against the action of the authorities in not allowing him to sign chits, departed early this morning.

All flags are flying at half-mast.

Reuter.
Nicksland, Aug. 30.

Edward Kelly has arrived.

Reuter.

Paradise, Aug. 30.

A grave scandal threatens to rock the country to its very foundations, following a report that six halos, three pairs of wings, five harps, and valuable pearls from the pearly gates are missing. Suspicion attaches to a recent visitor from Hongkong. The government has resigned.

Reuter.

Hades, Sept. 1.

At a meeting of the Hades Ratepayers' Association, held yesterday evening, it was decided to forward a petition to the authorities protesting against the coal dump. Speakers pointed out that it was already as hot as Hades, and the action of the authorities was an insult to the intelligence of the residents of the country.

Devil's Gutch, Sept. 2.

Action is likely to be taken by the authorities to close down all the dancing academies and cabarets in the country, following protests by the factions led by Bluebeard and King Nero. In a manifesto to-day Bluebeard stated that dancing was demoralising the whole community, and residents adjacent to the dance halls could get no sleep because of the constant din. "Our young people are heading straight for earth," he protested.

Lost Angles, Sept. 3.

Edward Kelly, a recent arrival in the Colony, was charged in the Central Magistracy yesterday with offensive behaviour. Police evidence stated that Kelly was drunk and disorderly, and when ordered to work in the stockhold told his captives to "Go to H—". In his defence, Kelly stated that the summery weather of the past few days had caused him to drink more than he should have. He expressed regret for his lapse.

Defendant was sentenced to seven days imprisonment.

Reuter.

The prisoner Kelly has effected an escape. It is believed that he is heading for Hongkong.

KULIANG HUMOUR

HOW "TAX" ISSUE WAS OVERCOME

The summer season is nearly over, and a few lines should be written to tell how Kuliang has been appreciated this year. The weather has been all that holiday-makers could desire, and more than they usually dare to hope. Since the beginning of July there has been very little rain, and no typhoon has come (up to the date of writing) to try the nerves of the timorous and to gladden the hearts of the local masons and carpenters (who seem to spring up like mushrooms when repairs are needed). There has been very little thunder until the last week or so, when one or two severe but brief thunderstorms visited us. In short, so far, Kuliang has enjoyed almost uniformly fine weather. Of course the farmers do not like the long drought, but there was enough rain in the spring to ensure a fairly good first crop, and so there is no danger of any serious shortage. Those who have visited Kuliang for the first time this year, will probably wish to come again.

COMMUNICATIONS.

The road connecting Foochow (East Gate) with the foot of Kuliang has now been completed—at least, sufficiently to permit of traffic; the surface on that part nearest Foochow city leaves much to be desired, but Chinese chauffeurs do not seem easily daunted. It is only a ten or fifteen minutes run in a car from the East Gate to the foot of the mountain, and less than half an hour from Nantai (where most of the foreigners live, south of the Min River). A good walker can walk up from the foot to the Kuliang settlement in 1½ hours or less, and down in forty minutes. So—Kuliang is now separated from Nantai by only one or two hours. The road connecting Foochow with the Pagoda Anchorage is nearing completion, and soon those who wish to do so will be able to travel all the way from the Anchorage to the foot of Kuliang by car in less than an hour.

POPULATION.

Partly owing to the increasing ease of communication, the summer population of Kuliang is becoming more Chinese. This year the Provincial Chairman, General Chiang Kung-nai, the Head of the XIXth Army, General Tsai Ting-kai, and quite a number of other officials, have been spending shorter or longer periods on the mountain. It has been interesting for the foreigners to see these "great men" and to note that, dressed as they are in quite ordinary garb, they do not present any very remarkable appearance, some of them even looking almost insignificant. They are not attended when travelling, by any sort of bodyguard (at least not visibly), but an unusually large number of police and gendarmes (if these words properly represent the "Public Safety Bureau" and the "Peace Preservation Corps") are in evidence on the mountain this year, especially in the neighbourhood of the houses occupied by the officials.

The foreign population of Kuliang is, however, quite up to, if not above, the normal, and very few indeed of the cottages are unoccupied.

TAXES.

In order to defray part of the cost of the police mentioned above the Provincial Government have made an attempt to impose a house tax on all summer residents on Kuliang, whether Chinese or foreign, at the rate of 2% of the rent payable on each house. After repeated and prolonged discussion and negotiation through the British and American Consuls, in the course of which it was pointed out that the Chinese Government has no right to impose any tax on foreigners who enjoy extra territorial rights, and the Chinese authorities explained that the word translated "tax" in their proclamation, should have been translated "voluntary contribution"—it was at last agreed that householders might pay such "voluntary contributions" to the Kuliang Club at a flat rate of three dollars per house. This has been done (by the great majority of residents) and everyone seems satisfied by the compromise.

A chair tax has also been imposed, ten cents on every trip up or down the mountain. This is being paid without serious protest (as far as I know) by all concerned.

Tennis has been as popular as usual, and thanks to the good weather the tennis courts have been very lively every day. The tournament attracted many entries, and is being put through in good time. So far the Singles and Ladies Doubles have been decided, Miss Helen Smith being the winner in the Ladies Singles, with Miss A. L. Richards as runner-up, and

as runner-up. Miss Richards and Miss M. Smith won the Ladies Doubles, with Mrs. Lloyd and Miss A. Campbell as runners-up.

On August 7 the Foochow Recreation Club sent up ten players for the annual Foochow-Kuliang Tennis match, which was played in glorious weather. The result was a win for Kuliang by three matches to two, although Foochow won ten sets to Kuliang's nine, and ninety-seven games to Kuliang's ninety. The return match was played on Aug. 17 on the Foochow Recreation Club Ground. It began in rain, but fortunately this soon stopped, and the match could be played out. The result was again a win for Kuliang by three matches to two, and Kuliang also won both on sets (nine to seven) and games (seventy-seven to sixty-five).

Other amusements and activities have included "Recognition Picnics" to enable residents to meet one another. Concerts (which show that this year Kuliang musical talent is certainly well up to the average), a Reading of Shakespeare's "Midsummer Night's Dream," countless hikes and outings (to Kushi Peak to see the sunrise, to Moon Temple to enjoy the moonlight, and so on). A Garden Fete organised by Bishop and Mrs. Hind in aid of the Foochow Native Hospital brought in $450 and also furnished a splendid opportunity for friendly intercourse and amusement on Saturday, August 5.

The Convention speaker this year was the Rev. John Foster, of Union Theological College, Canton, who gave a series of unusually arresting and stimulating addresses on the general subject "Our Experience of God in Christ." The attendance during the days on which he spoke (Aug. 5 to 11) was remarkably large, and the speaker seemed to appeal to all those who were present, perhaps more especially to the younger members of the community. "Convention Week" was brought to a conclusion, as usual, by the United Communion Service on Sunday afternoon, which was this year conducted by Rev. E. S. Burket, of the American Baptist Mission.

The Cantata is a synonym for the pinnacle of musical endeavour and achievement each year at Kuliang. This year the untiring energy of Mrs. Stockwell and the other members of the Music Committee have resulted in an unusually impressive rendering of Handel's "The Messiah" (Selections), by a choir of over sixty voices, the solo parts being taken by Mrs. Scott, Mrs. Vlassoff, the Misses Ericson and Dow, and Messrs. Farley, Culver, and Griffiths. Miss Nora Arrowsmith and Miss Imogene Ward accompanying.

It would, in fact, be difficult to find a holiday resort anywhere to challenge Kuliang, and the only regret is that holidays, like other good things, must come to an end. —Our Own Correspondent.

"DEATH IS NO MORE THAN THE REMOVAL OF EARTHLY LIMITATIONS". —Dr. A. T. Bennett-Haines.

The Hon. Secretary of the Child Welfare Centre, Indian Troops, begs to acknowledge with many thanks a generous donation of $1,500 from Mr. J. P. Fattell towards the Child Welfare Centre funds.

Among recent arrivals in the Colony are two resident teachers for St. Stephen's College, Stanley. These are Mr. G. Phillips, B.Sc. (Brit. Colum.) and Miss A. Hancock, B.A. (Dunedin). Both of these are experienced teachers and have had experience of teaching Chinese students, and both hold the Teachers' Diplomas. They will join the staff of St. Stephen's College in September.

CANTON SILK EXHIBITION

OVER 50,000 VISITORS IN TWO DAYS

Canton, Aug. 26. It is reliably reported that over fifty thousand people visited the sericultural exhibit at the Y. M. C. A. on the first two days. Apparently they came on account of curiosity and were not disappointed. The picture is almost complete from mulberry plants to embroideries, hosiery and dresses with a few side lines as well. The only noticeable omission is the weaving process.

On entering one is directed between rows of various kinds of mulberry plants in pots to a display of well over two hundred races and crosses of cocoons each of which apparently differs in some respect from the others. In this room also are a number of kinds of worm specimens—white, yellow, green, spotted, unspotted and tiger-striped. Living worms in the various ages from newly hatched to maturity are busy devouring mulberry leaves. The principal diseases are shown in one corner and microscopic examination of moths for pebrine is performed.

Silk testing—for evenness and neatness—is demonstrated by a machine winding 100 threads of the raw silk per inch on an observation board. Under ultra-violet light cocoons are shown grading from pure white to golden yellow. As side lines are shown fish and chickens which consume the pupae remaining after reeling off the silk and paper made from the mulberry stems cut down to the ground in the winter. Three types of reeling machines are in operation converting the cocoons into the continuous thread of commerce and export. A display of finished silk fabrics and embroideries occupies one large room. A little farther on several girls are at work stitching the intricate patterns of the embroideries. Last of all the visitor is given the chance of seeing a theatrical performance in the afternoon at ten cents admission or a special programme in the evening at twenty cents.

The points of special interest as shown by the crowds of spectators are the places where the actual work is being done by persons. These places are three—moth examination, embroidering and silk reeling. The latter holds most of the crowd. Perhaps unconsciously most of the spectators are fascinated by the working of the process the discovery of which marked the beginning of the silk industry.

The exhibit will be open daily from noon to 10 p.m. until September the second.

The American Gunboat, U.S.S. Sacramento arrived here this morning shortly after 8 a.m. and fired a salute of 21 guns which was returned from the Blackhead Fort.

A Receiving Order was made at the Bankruptcy Court on Saturday in respect of the Kohinoor and the Royal Silk Stores. It was stated that the liabilities amounted to about $42,000 and against these were book debts of $10,000 and stock in trade worth $80,000.

The final general meeting of shareholders in the South China Sunday Star, Ltd. (in liquidation) was held at the office of Messrs. Thompson & Co., Chartered Accountants, York Building, on Saturday morning, when it was unanimously resolved that the wife, and I occasionally met members of the Peninsula Band who were staying there. Defendant did not stay at the flat until the middle of January and I was introduced to him first in February. I fell in love with defendant during our acquaintance and we first had relations on February 5th. The only other occasion intimacy took place was on February 8.

On the 6th they had been talking about love together and he then made suggestions saying that he would marry her.

Mr. D'Almeida: How often did he say that?—Witness: He was always saying it.

NO LETTERS.

Did he ever take you out?—No, not even to the cinema.

Did he ever write any letters to you?—No.

When did you first inform your mother of this promise?—In June after I had come from the Hospital and found out my condition. My mother became very angry and said she would insist on defendant marrying me.

In answer to another question, witness stated: One day in June I went to Mr. Silvani's flat with my mother and she said to defendant "You have disgraced my daughter. I want you to marry her."

Barnes' office to compare it with the layout he had prepared. Then Miss James, head of the glove department, called up to ask for Mr. Barnes. Informed that he had not yet reached the office, she asked if Eve would come to her department to see some new gloves that she was eager to have advertised in the Times next morning.

When Eve returned to the office 20 minutes later Miss Allen was nowhere in sight. "Tell you all about it at lunch," promised Arlene, looking up from her typing.

"It was this way," she said gleefully after they had given their orders at the fifth floor tea room. "Barnes came in while you were talking to Miss James. He gave Marya and Miss Allen and me a cool, distant good morning as if we were molecules and sailed right through to his office and slammed the door.

"I think that dashed the new siren a little, but not for long. She took out the good old paint box and revised her face some, and was about ready to go into conference with the boss when little me barged in ahead of her with a message. While I was there I thought I might as well call his attention to the fact that your former desk had become a dumping ground for this and that and should I have Charles clear it out so the new girl would have a place to park her vanity case. He grinned and agreed it was a good idea and I should go ahead. Then I happened to remember that Mr. Bixby wanted to see him. He stopped a moment on his way out to tell our new playmate to browse around the store this morning and take notes on anything she saw that seemed interesting and that by the time she got back Charles would have a desk cleared for her. Then he said you and I should make out a new schedule of lunch periods so one of us would be on hand all the time to take care of phone calls."

Eve did not tell Dick that evening of her unpleasant encounter with the new girl. She owed it to him, she felt, to keep their first week together free from office gossip and office cares. But she was uneasy. Mona Allen was not one who would easily forget a defeat. She would try to make trouble in some way, Eve was very sure.

125,000 roubles. After expenses every rouble goes to building amateur sports throughout our Russia."

Here is the point I should like people outside of Russia to catch. While 50,000 people saw that football game, there were sent into the association written applications for five hundred thousand seats. Only one in ten who wanted to and could afford to see that football match was able to gain admission.

Certainly we in Canada and the United States do not realize the way life is being lived in Russia. At least I did not. There are hardships being endured, there are sacrifices being made; that is true. Can you have all this progress without some sacrifice? But the tempo and enjoyment and aliveness one sees and feels throughout Russia is a revelation to most people.

AN ECONOMIC HONEYMOON.

The explanation is that Russia is emerging into a great boom, and, California-like, her people are so busy with themselves and their work that they seem quite indifferent to what the rest of the world has been thinking and saying about them. Russians are in the beginning of an economic honeymoon, and they like it. Just as Litvinov captured for Russia most of the fruits and the attention of the Economic Conference, so also it seems very clear to me that for a number of years Russia's great progress is going to command world attention, world admiration, and along certain lines, world emulation.

CINEMA SCREENINGS

NOTES SUPPLIED BY THE THEATRES

There are types that filmgoers seldom see, incidents that will appear like living pages from the Arabian Nights, customs that derive from the dim North African past in "Baroud", Alex Ingram's first talking picture, which is released by Ideal Films Ltd. now showing at the King's Theatre.

In this exciting and heart-stirring picture, the producer of "The Four Horsemen" has brought to the screen a variety of types of glamorous divinity. His Moroccan chieftains, his bandits, sand-diviners, street-sellers, nomads of the desert, bring the indubitable, authentic East to the screen.

None, assuredly, could have been more fitted to interpret the East for the talking film than the man who has lived for years in North Africa and understands their mentality and philosophy, a man whose name is associated with the screen's most spectacular triumphs.

"Baroud", which is the love story of a French officer of Spahis and Zinah, daughter of a Moroccan Caid, may be described as bringing to life an authentic "Song of Arab". Its actors are numbered by the thousand, its settings are such as, in the words of Rex Ingram, to create within the heart of the onlooker an intense desire to visit the localities pictured. There are love sequences, one of them set in a narrow, highwalled by-way of Marrakech, that are certain to open the floodgates of emotion, whilst the lovely and appropriate notes of a Berber love song run through the story like a golden thread.

"Baroud" based upon a theme with a universal appeal is likely to arouse excited controversy. The love of the Frenchman for a daughter of Islam; the attempt to surmount the barriers of nationality and faith at the behest of the call of the heart, is the central theme of a picture that is said to be worthy of its producer's reputation and utterly unlike any talking film so far made.

"To-Night is Ours"

Claudette Colbert and Frederic March are co-starred in "To-Night is Ours", screen adaptation of the romantic play by Noel Coward, which opened yesterday at the Queen's Theatre. It marks the first appearance of March on the screen since he won the award of the Motion Picture Academy of Arts and Sciences for the best performance of 1932.

The witty but romantic flavour of "Private Lives", a sensational movie success, best-known of Coward's plays, characterizes "To-Night is Ours". It too is a story of clever, amusing people, outwardly giddy but actually devoted and tender toward each other.

Miss Colbert is cast as a girl who has thrown aside the responsibilities of a kingdom for a fling at Paris, and March as a young, wealthy Parisian who insists on taking the fling with her. Together they race gayly through the French capital, fully enjoying the pleasures of the town, but more fully enjoying each other.

Their moments alone are moments of tender, deep-flowing passion. A strange trick of the fates almost upsets their lives, but a surprising, dramatic climax sets everything to rights.

Allan Skipworth, veteran stage actress who has scored brilliant success in character roles in "If I Had a Million", "Night After Night", and "Madame Racketeer", heads the supporting cast. Others in featured roles are Arthur Byron and Paul Cavanagh.

"Lucky Devils"

$50-a-day dare-devils have their inning at the Central Theatre, taking the breath away in every foot of "Lucky Devils".

Thrill is a by-word of Hollywood stunt men. Courageously, they brave every conceivable hazard, risking their lives and limbs to crash automobiles into plate glass; fight on foot-wide prison walls; swing across buildings; fight on burning roofs; and tumble fifty feet to earth through a skylight.

Bill Boyd employs his virile physique and personality with realism in a sincere, convincing portrayal. As Skipper, head stunt man, he saves an "extra" girl from suicide. Upsetting his theory that stunts and romance do not mix, he marries her. He acquires a fear of death and loses his nerve. He works as a day labourer, and eventually becomes despondent when his wife anticipates a baby; he is penniless.

A stunting job is available. He undertakes the execution of a death ride in a tense dramatic climax which kept an audience glued to the edge of the seats.

Dorothy Wilson, recently soaring to prominence as the RKO-Radio stenographer featured in "The Age of Consent", gives an able dramatic portrayal as Skipper's wife. Wm. Gargan, stage star, whose recent role in "The Animal Kingdom" added to his laurels, is well cast as a member of the "Lucky Devils" club. Roscoe Ates, William Bakewell, Julie Haydon and others are featured.

"Cynara"

Ronald Colman has no intention of retiring. His season's work that saw the completion of King Vidor's picturisation of the international stage success, "Cynara" which Samuel Goldwyn will present at the King's Theatre on Wednesday and the forthcoming "The Masquerader", makes his future more assured.

"The Devil is Driving"

Construction of a seven story ramp up which automobiles could be driven gave Paramount set designers and engineers one of the toughest problems they have ever faced.

The ramp was needed for scenes in "The Devil is Driving", drama set in a garage which is used as headquarters by an organized auto-theft ring. "The Devil is Driving" comes to the Queen's Theatre on Thursday. Edmund Lowe, Wynne Gibson, James Gleason, Lela Wilson, Dickie Moore and Allan Dinehart play the leading roles in the picture.

The garage required for the picture was to be eight stories high, with a ramp connecting the various floors.

While the ostensible purpose of the structure was for storage of cars, it actually served merely as a "front" for operations of the gang, and for an elaborate speakeasy located on the top, according to specifications of the script.

The seven floors of such a setting had to be constructed separately, and not one above the other, inasmuch as only one could be shown on the screen at a time. But, in "The Devil is Driving", the camera follows stolen cars as they come in on the ground floor, and speed up the ramp to the seventh, where they are rebuilt so that they cannot be recognized.

The problem was solved by constructing a portable two-story ramp, which was moved from one setting to the other as each became the centre for action. It was so designed that it ran one story below, and one story above the settings. To show a car going up all seven stories, it was only necessary to photograph it speeding up the ramp to the settings representing each floor; then join the seven separate shots in consecutive order.

Edmund Lowe has the principal role in "The Devil is Driving". He is cast as an easy-going, wise-cracking mechanic who drops his good-nature when his nephew is seriously injured by the gang, and the boy's father is murdered when he seeks revenge. Lowe, assisted by Wynne Gibson, then goes on a rampage that produces breathless, dramatic results.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

By W. E. McKenney

When auction was at its peak you will recall partners bidding back and forth between themselves, each believing that the hand should be played in his suit. To-day in contract we realize that those were mis-fit hands.

Remember this: when you bid a suit and re-bid it in the face of partner's continual re-bidding of the suit he has named, neither of you making any attempt to show another suit—you must stop to analyze whether your hand may be of any benefit to your partner before making your fourth bid.

If you find that it is going to be impossible for partner to get into your hand, and that your hand will be of no benefit to him—then you may again re-bid your suit. Otherwise you should pass. Few good players got into trouble with the following mis-fit hand because they were quick to realize what was wrong.

The Bidding
South, the dealer, passed. West bid one heart, East one spade, West two hearts, East two spades, and West bid three hearts. This bid of three hearts definitely shows West with a good suit of at least six cards in length. East bid three spades.

The beginner at contract would make the mistake of bidding four hearts with the West hand for two reasons; first, because he is void of spades; and second, because he holds 100 honours in hearts.

His partner, by bidding spades three times, definitely told him that the hand was a mis-fit. If West should bid four hearts, his partner's hand is very apt to be worthless to him due to the fact that West does not hold a spade. West with his two aces can feel confident that his partner has an entry into his hand to use some of his high cards, therefore he should pass.

Three spades can easily be made, while with good defence West cannot make even one heart. As long as North and South are careful not to lead a spade all the tricks that West, the declarer, can possibly make are five heart tricks and the ace of clubs.

ATTITUDE FAVOURABLE TO NANKING

Shanghai, Aug. 26.
Interviewed by Reuter this morning, Mr. Sun Fo stated that General Feng Yu-hsiang's attitude was favourably inclined towards the Government and he was willing to come to Nanking, though not being prepared for a long stay.

Mr. Sun said the Government has offered General Feng the position of Inspector-General of the Chinese Army, which he declined. The Government was now planning to appoint General Feng as director of the national river conservancy work.

Mr. Sun Fo denied that the movement of Generals Feng Chen-wu and Chi Hung-chang in Charhar was connected with General Feng; as the latter had already retired.

Mr. Sun emphatically denied a report of his intention to visit Canton, saying he had not even contemplated the trip. He added that the Canton members of the Central Executive Council had no ground for opposition to the Fifth Congress. They only represented a minority on the Council and,
while they could ask the Government to explain its policy, they should not oppose Nanking.—

DEFENDANT FILES PETITION IN BANKRUPTCY

The hearing petition in bankruptcy of Sawan, a Sikh money lender who was defendant in the recent claim for $30,000 by a compatriot who alleged malicious prosecution and false imprisonment, came before the Chief Justice, Mr. J. R. Wood, on Saturday and was adjourned.

Petitioner was represented by Mr.
M. K. Lo. In his evidence he stated that he had lost $27,100 in 1914, which was irrecoverable, and had incurred legal expenses of about $6,000 in addition to the judgment of $2,513
given against him in the recent action.

His total liabilities would therefore amount to about $33,613, against which he had assets of $7,000 in good promissory notes, and his wages as a watchman.

Sawan was cross-examined by Mr.
Lockhart-Smith, who asked for an adjournment of the petition.

Mr. Lo objected to an adjournment and said he had gathered from a previous interview with the Assistant Official Assigner that the petition would not be opposed.

Mr. Lockhart-Smith replied that he received further information of the case after his interview with Mr. Lo but he did intimate to one member of the solicitor's firm that he would apply for an adjournment.

The petition was then adjourned.

cessfully rendered command of his troops

COUNTERFEIT COINS.

SEVEN MONTHS SENTENCE FOR BUS CONDUCTOR

A total of seven months' hard labour was passed by Mr. Schofield, at the Central Magistracy on Saturday morning, on Wong Sang a bus conductor on a China Motor Bus Company's vehicle, No. 635, for having uttered a counterfeit ten cent piece, and possession of nine counterfeit ten cent pieces at Queen's Road, West.

Sergeant Davies said that an Inspector boarded the bus, and noticed defendant giving change for $1 to a lady passenger. He asked the lady to show him the change, and found one counterfeit ten cent piece. He accused the defendant of uttering a bad coin, and searched his bag, finding nine other counterfeit coins, all in a special compartment of the bag.

Addressing the Chinese superintendent of the Company Mr.
Schofield said there seemed to be a policy for the Company's shroff to hand back the counterfeit coins which conductors collected. If that was so, it would be encouraging this sort of crime. He suggested that the Company either destroy the coins or hand them into the Government
Treasury, instead of sending them back into circulation.

Defendant said that he received these coins in the performance of his duty, and that the shroff at the Company did not take them.

Mr. Schofield passed sentence, remarking that it was a very serious offence putting these coins back into circulation.

GLORIFYING YOURSELF.

You Owe Yourself Foot Comfort

By Alicia Hart

Do you feel that you can't walk another step this summer?

Some women who have always worn pumps or delicate little sandals with high heels find tremendous relief from getting into flat-heeled sports things on hot days.

There is no question that heels make a lot of difference. You can even get medium-heeled oxfords that go well with summer things and find them a boon, if you are unwilling to get into brogues. Try them, anyway. You can get a pair for so little this summer.

Keep a pair of comfortable, easy shoes in the office. Change into them the minute you come in from the street (always carefully putting shoe trees into the shoes you take off). Then, change into a third pair when you get home. And for your own personal information, if you take off your stockings, too, and don't bench sandals for easy comfortable home-wear, your feet will benefit by it.

If you are over 35, get a half size longer shoes the next time you buy them. It is sensible to face the fact that your feet do get larger. Many a woman limps along without knowing that she has short shoes. Width makes far less difference in the long run than length does. It is length that cramps the bones of your feet which affect your entire body and disposition.

And if your feet still hurt, see an orthopedic specialist!

because he was at the airport. And Newt was away. That didn't leave anybody but Nick and he wasn't allowed to go with Nick.

Without Companionship

The quarter was his to do as he liked with. He knew the idea was to get him out of the way. Maybe he'd get Nick anyway—he hated to go to shows alone. Or maybe he'd go to the airport on the street car.

A deep disappointment needed satisfying. Bill was out with his father, Newt was away with his father, and—oh, everybody seemed to be doing things with fathers. Between the houses across the street he could see Professor Berger explaining something to his big son. Something about a star—he could see them pointing.

Lonely—that's what he was tonight. He didn't want Nick—the big smarty! He didn't want to see the show. He didn't want anything.

He circled the house. The yard was baked and hot. "I suppose I ought to be a real good boy and sprinkle the grass and weed the petunias!" he said in a high mocking voice. He kicked a chair. Then he pretended to follow a blackbird behind the bank of spruce.

He threw himself down on the ground and cried.

He heard his father locking up. "Oh, he's all right," came his voice. "He was just working up for some dough. That's all. Kids are never satisfied."

YOUR CHILDREN

Boys Need Fathers' Companionship

By Olive Roberts Barton

"Dad, let's do something."

"What?"

"Oh, I don't know. Just let's do something. I know! A game of ball."

"I can't pitch any more. Anyway, my foot hurts."

"I'll get your slippers. You won't have to run. Just pitch and catch. Oh, come on. You're good enough."

"No, I don't think so."

"Well, then let's go some place. Let's get the car and go to the park. It's early yet and they don't close the pool till nine o'clock."

"I haven't swum for years, Bert. Anyway, I don't want to get in that mop."

"There won't be a mob. And there are benches. You could sit and watch me."

"A lot of fun!"

Plans Prove Futile

"Well, looker here! We could go over to the air field and see those planes that are going to race in Chicago. Bill's uncle's in it and Bill and his daddy will be over there."

"Airplanes don't interest me. Maybe your mother will go with you when she gets the dishes done."

"Oh, women don't understand those things, dad. And they ask such funny questions. Oh, come on and go to the airport. Won't you, please?"

"Nope. I've got a good detective story I want to finish."

"No—you're not," called his wife. "You're going to a movie with me. You promised to take me to see that 'Zoo' show. Your book can wait."

"Can I go too?"

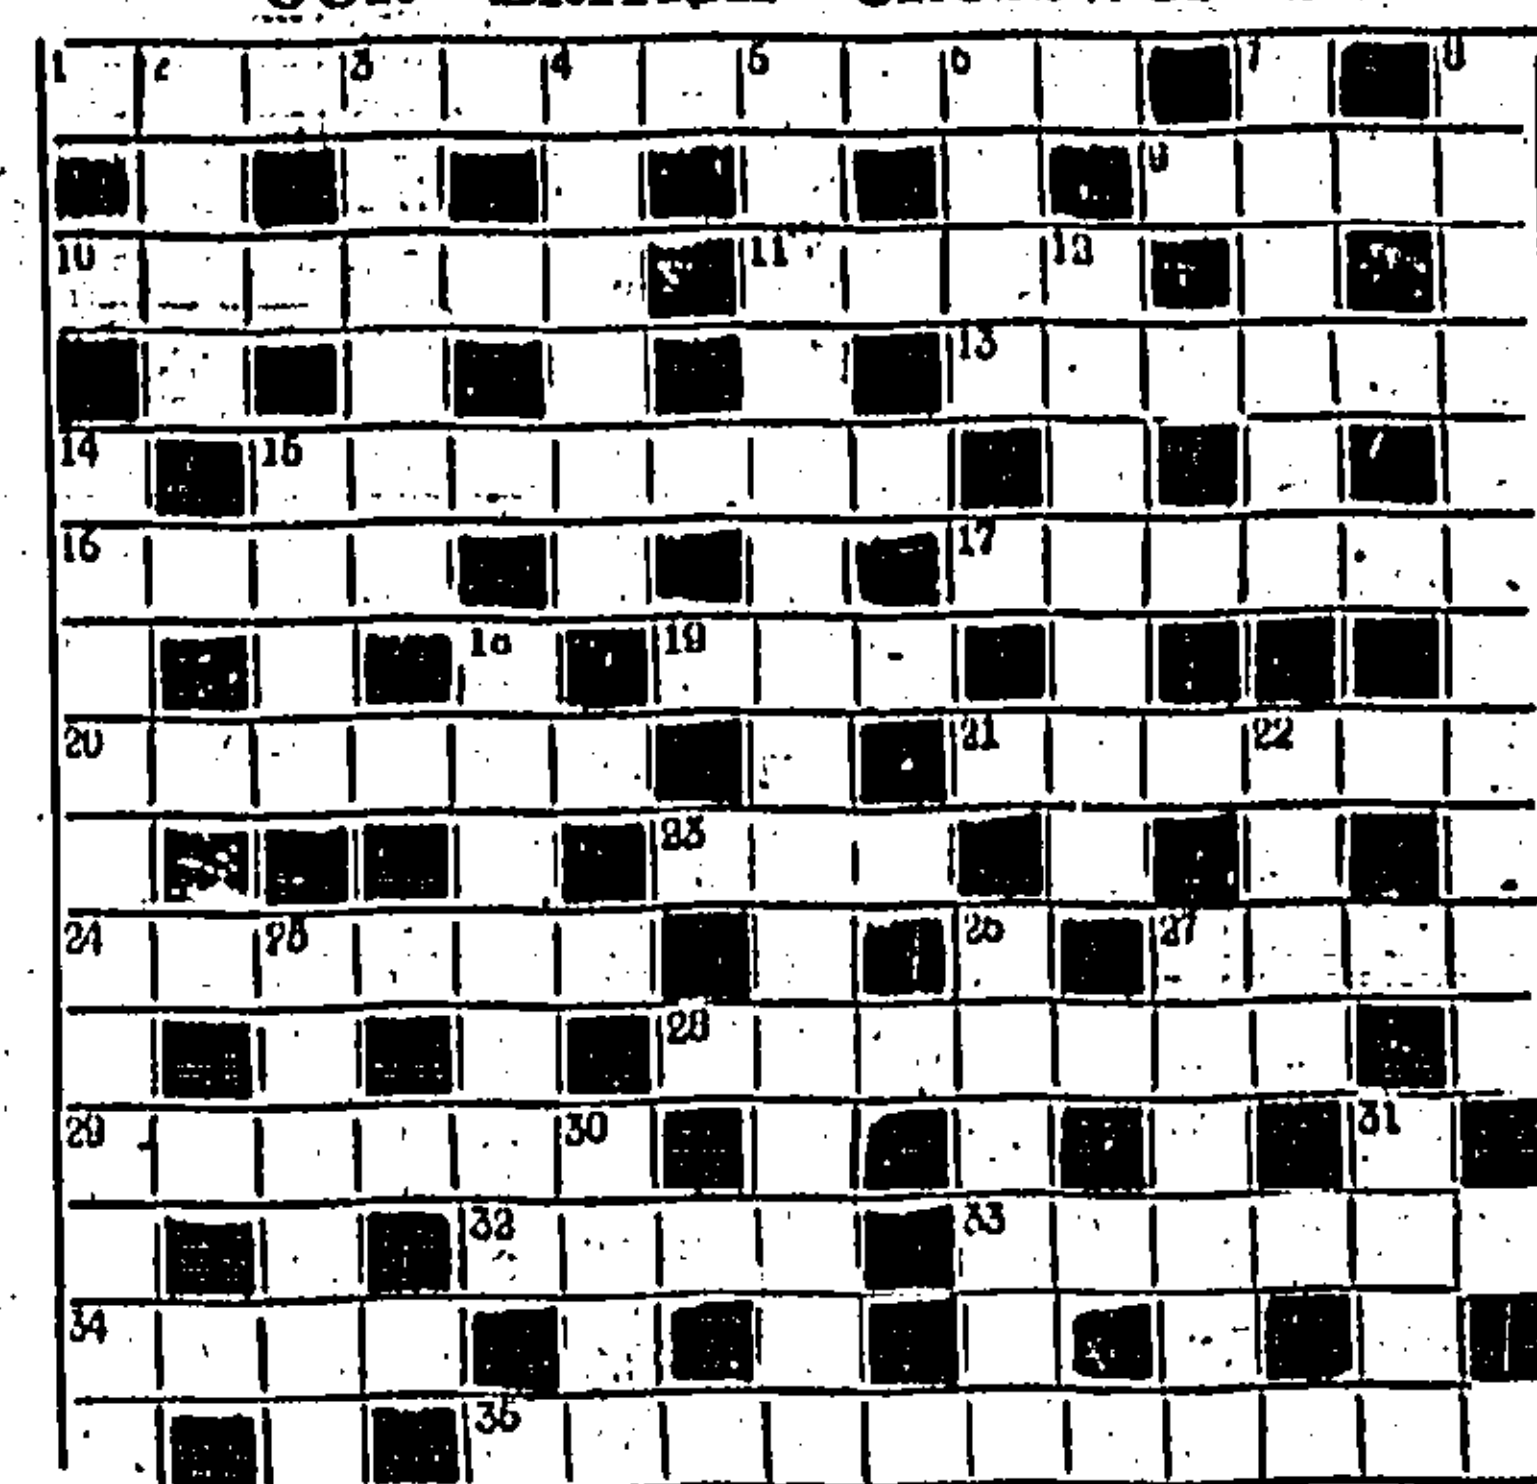

"Oh, let your father and me go out once in a while by ourselves, Bert."

"Well, I'd like to see that Zoo show where all the animals get loose."

"All right, all right! Give him a quarter, Charley, and he can get one of the boys."

Bert took the money and left. Who would he get? Bill was out

For the LOVE of EVE by Lucy Walling

BEGIN HERE TO-DAY

EVE BAYLESS, pretty assistant to EARLE HAINES, advertising manager of Bixby's department store, secretly marries DICK HADEN, a construction superintendent. Dick opposes her continued employment and pleads for a home but Eve is determined to go on working.

The same day Eve learns that she is to be sent to New York by the store and must leave that night. She does not tell Dick this news until they are at dinner. He sees her aboard her train.

In New York Eve meets FRED CARTER, dress buyer for Bixby's, who introduces her to THERON REECE. Reece is much attracted by Eve. He sneers her by trying to kiss her in a taxi.

At the end of a week Eve returns to Lake City. Dick meets her and takes her to the fashionable Hotel Miramar. They are about to go down to dinner when a woman telephones, asking for Dick. He leaves immediately, saying something has happened on the job and does not return all night.

CHAPTER VI

It was nearly time for Eve to start to the office when Dick returned next morning.

All her anger and suspicion were lost in concern when she saw him. She ran to him contritely and clung to him. "Oh, Dick, what happened," she cried. His clothes were grimy and ruined. His shoulders sagged with weariness.

"Somebody tried to wreck the foundation," he explained briefly. "Used a crude bomb."

Eve's eyes widened. "Racketeers?" she asked.

"I don't think so. A man was fired last week—a sullen, spiteful chap. He's the one they're hunting for. We worked all night trying to get at the bottom of the mischief and trying to estimate the damage. How about some breakfast?"

Solicitously Eve started the hot water running in the tub for Dick's bath and ordered breakfast sent up.

Over their coffee Dick told her of the night's work and she learned, among other things, that the woman who had telephoned the night before was Mrs. Hall, who owned a barbeque stand across the street. She had overheard conversation which led her to suspect trouble.

"I should have called you," Dick said regretfully. "But things were in such a mess and by the time I could get around to it, it was long past midnight and I hoped you were asleep. You see we had to make sure there was nothing more that could cause damage."

"But you might have been hurt!" Eve was remembering that while Dick was risking his life in the interests of his employers she had been doubting him. She must make that up to him—never hurt him by letting him know.

Eve reached the office half an hour late. She hoped this tardiness would not come to Mr. Bixby's notice. He always was at his desk early and expected everyone else to be prompt. On Eve's desk—the desk that had been Alice Marshall's—was a note which read:

"Memo to Miss Bayless from Mr. Barnes:

"After you correct proofs of to-day's ad, please see Miss McElroy and get details for Basement hat sale Tuesday. Select six or eight hats for sketching. Make 3-col. layout for Press and 2-col. for Times and write copy and heads to fit. See layout on my desk for depth of ad and approximate size of cut."

"Send proof of your column in to-day's Press to Mr. Bixby for his O. K."

Eve read this through a second time. Basement hats! Well, they were starting her at the bottom, literally. She had taken it for granted that there would be a new girl to fill the place made vacant by her promotion. A new girl to write relatively unimportant bits of copy and do the errands that could not be trusted to Charles, the office boy. But there was no time to waste on injured feelings. Two messenger boys entered at that moment, both in great haste.

"Anything for the Times?" asked one of them. Eve went into Barnes' office to see. There was a manilla envelope on his desk marked, "Times—Classified." The boy snatched it from her hand and was off. Eve turned to the other lad. "Anybody here by the name of Miss Eve Bayless?" he inquired. He carried a box from a florist's shop.

Flowers! Eve wondered if Earle Barnes could have sent them in honour of her promotion. Perhaps even Mr. Bixby. There were six yellow rosebuds, long-stemmed with glossy, deep green leaves. The card in the tiny envelope read, "Love from Dick."

Eve brushed one of the fragrant buds with her lips and with a topaz bar pin fastened it below the collar of her frock. The other five buds she arranged in a pottery vase that she kept on her desk.

Arlene Smith and Marya Vlad entered the office together. Arlene was modern, inclined to be slangy. She wore the extremes in fashion and wore them well. Her dark eyes were shaded by an intriguing long black fringe and her soft black hair was kept sleek through weekly visits to the beauty shop. Marya was a pretty young Bohemian girl whose hair was parted above a broad white forehead and whose gentle dignity gave evidence of the careful training to which her old world mother held firmly.

The girls showered Eve with questions about her trip to New York and exclaimed rapturously over the gifts she had brought them—a dram of jasmine perfume in a crystal bottle for Marya and a new lipstick for Arlene.

Eve corrected the proofs and sent them to the buyers of the departments represented for their approval. Then she went to the basement hat shop to discuss tomorrow's sale. She jotted down descriptions and prices and selected several hats for sketching. "Please send these up at once," she said. "Miss Vlad wants them right away."

"I'm sorry but I haven't any one to send now," Janet McElroy replied crisply. "All the girls on the floor are busy and there isn't an errand boy in-sight. I'd bring them up myself but I have to go to the receiving room to look over a new shipment that just came in."

unwieldy pyramid and carried them to the office herself via the freight elevator. She regarded this task as beneath the dignity of her position and did not wish to be seen by anyone she knew. The buyers she suspected, did not feel about this as she did. One of them was likely to appear in the advertising office at any time with a great armful of new merchandise. Even Mr. Bixby could be seen at times balancing a stack of handboxes or carrying an evening gown over his arm. Mr. Bixby believed firmly in the dignity of any useful, honest labour. At staff meetings he frequently enlarged on that theme.

Eve entered the office and dropped the hats on a table near Marya's drawing board. A girl she had never seen was sitting at her desk—the desk that had been Alice Marshall's. A small, blond girl with round, blue eyes.

"This is Miss Allen, Miss Bayless," Marya said. "She's going to have your old place."

Eve smiled and offered her hand. "How do you do, Miss Allen. I hope you will like it here as much as the rest of us do."

Languidly the young woman withdrew a limp hand from Eve's

"I KILLED HER"

PATRICIO REMEDIOS
 CONFESSES

Shanghai, Aug. 26.
 "I plead guilty. I got angry
 and killed her in my room with an
 icebreaker."
 In these words Jose Patricio
 dos Remedios confessed to the murder of Choy Ling, his common
 law wife, whose body was found
 in a trunk aboard the N.Y.K. liner,
 Shanghai Maru, on August 7.

The sensational confession was
 made this morning at the Portuguese Consulate General.

Remedios said he had killed
 Choy Ling on the night of August
 4. Late next morning he placed
 the dead body in a black trunk
 which he had taken aboard the Shanghai Maru.

Patricio completely exonerated
 his brother, Jose Eulalio dos Remedios, who, he said, did not
 know of the crime until late on August 5. He had not helped to place the body in the trunk or
 put the trunk aboard the liner.

Patricio confessed in low, calm
 tones and signed the confession
 firmly and unwaveringly.—Reuter.

WORLD CRISIS A WAY OUT

By FREDERICK COPE, A.M.I.E.E.

Mr. Cope's striking articles on the world economic crisis
 which were recently published in the Hongkong Telegraph
 are now available in pamphlet form.

One of the features, repaying study, is the close similarity between the plan of reform suggested by this loyal writer,
 and certain aspects of the Roosevelt recovery programme.
 The author's ideas are naturally far too advanced for active
 promotion at the present time, but they are particularly interesting in view of the fact that President Roosevelt, in striking out on a path of his own, has travelled in the same direction.

The pamphlet is one of forty-four pages and can be obtained from the South China Morning Post at a cost

LESSON SERMON.

FIRST CHURCH OF CHRIST, SCIENTIST, HONGKONG

"Christ Jesus" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon which was read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, yesterday.

The Golden Text was: "No man hath seen God at any time;
 the only begotten son, which is in the bosom of the Father, he hath declared him" (John 1:18).
 Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible:
 "Believe me that I am in the Father, and the Father in me: or else believe me for the very works' sake. Verily, verily, say unto you, He that believeth on me, the works that I do shall he also do;
 and greater works than these shall he do; because I go unto the Father. And whatsoever ye shall ask in my name, that will I do, that the Father may be glorified in the Son. . . . I can do all things through Christ which strengtheneth me" (John 14:11-13-Phil.
 4:13).

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Christ is the ideal truth, that comes to heal sickness and sin through Christian Science, and attributes all power to God.
 Truth is God's remedy for error of every kind, and Truth destroys only what is untrue. Hence the fact that, to-day, as yesterday,
 Christ casts out evils and heals
 the sick" (pp.473,142).

125,000 roubles. After expenses every rouble goes to building amateur sports throughout our Russia."

Here is the point I should like people outside of Russia to catch. While 50,000 people saw that football game, there were sent into the association written applications for five hundred thousand seats. Only one in ten who wanted to and could afford to see that football match was able to gain admission.

Certainly we in Canada and the United States do not realise the way life is being lived in Russia. At least I did not. There are hardships being endured, there are sacrifices being made; that is true. Can you have all this progress without some sacrifice? But the tempo and enjoyment and aliveness one sees and feels throughout Russia are a revelation to most people.

AN ECONOMIC HONEYMOON.

The explanation is that Russia is emerging into a great boom, and, California-like, her people are so busy with themselves and their work that they seem quite indifferent to what the rest of the world has been thinking and saying about them. Russians are in the beginning of an economic honeymoon, and they like it. Just as Litvinov captured for Russia most of the fruits and the attention of the Economic Conference, so also it seems very clear to me that for a number of years to come Russia's great progress is going to command world attention, world admiration, and along certain lines, world emulation.

Mrs. M. Read (nee Maudie George) secured the first position in the first heat of the Ladies' 100 Yards Free Style.

In the second heat of the Men's Relay the Chinese Civil Servants were unfortunate to lose the services of Lai Im-cheuk, who was exhausted after his Back Stroke swim. They lost the second heat in the last five yards, when Ng Chi-man spurred to give Chung Sing an unexpected entry into the final.

BRITAIN AND JAPAN

Hongkong's vital interest in the preservation of friendly relations between Britain and Japan is, perhaps, sufficiently obvious to render unnecessary any emphasis on the very real concern we have in the outcome of the forthcoming cotton textile conference in India. It is no longer possible or politic to conceal the fact that those relations are far from happy today. Malicious propaganda has played a part in the creation of a delicate situation, but fundamentally the causes are deeper-rooted. Ever since the termination of the Anglo-Japanese Alliance in 1922, we have been drifting apart, a process which has been most unfortunately quickened in the last two years, first by the Manchuria adventure and secondly by the so-called Anglo-Japanese economic war, the one cause of friction being largely the outcome of the other. Japan, deprived of an outlet for her manufactures in China, has been developing new markets with an energy and enterprise richly deserving of the success achieved—we cannot be honest and not acknowledge it. In the process, Japanese merchants have entered into intensive competition with British goods in British colonies and Dominions. It was natural enough. Markets were sought where entry was most easily obtained, and for that reason the British Empire acted like a magnet. The reaction was equally predictable. Threatened British industries demanded protection and in certain instances steps have been taken to lessen the power of Japanese competition. If this can be termed economic war, it is purely defensive campaign as far as Britain is concerned. But Japan, gripped in a wave of ultra-patriotism, could not fail to interpret India's new tariffs, for instance, otherwise than as a sign of hostility to Japan. Nothing is farther than the truth, but colour has been lent to the belief by wild accusations on our part of "dumping". No doubt

Victory is to be had by pulling together. This, essentially, is the import of President Roosevelt's message to the United States on economic recovery. For a long time it has been reasonably clear that America could pull itself out of depression and into at least a fair amount of business activity at any time if ways could only be found to start all the machinery at once. Many were ready to start if only they knew others would start. Hundreds of employers were willing to restore employment and wages if they could be sure that other industries would similarly enlarge their pay rolls. Millions of workers would spend more freely the wages in hand when they could feel sure next week's wages would meet next week's need. Hence the programme adopted by the President and the formulation of codes.

NEIGHBOURLINESS

The essence of genuine recovery plans is that prosperity will come on a sound basis when men generally, whether employers, employees, farmers, storekeepers, investors or consumers, are willing, even glad, to give full value for what they receive. Narrow, mean grasping after selfish advantage must be renounced. Human considerations must be put ahead of certain inhuman so-called economic laws. That is the burden of President Roosevelt's appeal for the "home and community" spirit. In the deeper analysis the important thing about the recovery programme for better wages and hours in industry—and the reason why it can be expected to succeed—is not because it squares with any particular economic theory or because it offers any particular mechanics of money flow, but because it embodies and expresses a higher degree of economic justice between worker and capitalist and between competing producers than has prevailed amid the unsoftened rapacities of laissez-faire.

GOODWILL

But it needs good will and good intentions to implement it. If American business men concentrate their attention upon methods of evading the requirements of the codes, instead of fitting their businesses to them, a breakdown must come. The response to the appeal will be watched with the keenest interest throughout the world. If President Roosevelt succeeds, there will be a radical revision of ideas regarding what is possible in the present era in the direction of developing ideals into practice.

NEW YORK MENTALITY

Meanwhile, Wall Street seems to have learned no lesson from its recent humiliation. It has resumed gambling on rumour and fantastic hope, and the get-rich-quickers are determined once more to regain the honourable rank of million-dollar men—with the inevitable result. It must be a depressing spectacle for Mr. Roosevelt to find the material on which his hopes depend so volatile, so trivial, and so self-absorbed. There is not the smallest ground for optimism on the present scale. Commodity prices are being forced up, a small proportion of the unemployed is about to be reabsorbed by expensive expedients. Ergo, the boom is at hand and the crisis past and a good time coming for the live-wires. It is worse than a crime, it is child's play; and to-day New York has less claim than any capital in civilization to be treated seriously as a centre of international finance.

there have been instances of forced sales at unremunerative prices and roles in certain lines have roused suspicion that the marketing is Government-subsidised, but there is equally no doubt that 95 per cent. of Japan's export trade is conducted on a profitable basis, and that most of the criticism of Japanese competition will not stand analysis. If there had been an abnormal export campaign the yen could not have depreciated to the extent it has. Neither does it follow that if action is taken to prevent a man from buying a 2/- Japanese article, he will be in a position to pay 4/6 for a similar British article. There is a strong case on both sides and a solution of the problem created will certainly not be easy. A very great responsibility rests upon the delegates who will shortly assemble in India. Success will depend upon the spirit in which they enter upon their discussions. Frankness as well as goodwill is essential; all the cards must be on the table.

By ROBERT J. CROMIE

EDITOR AND OWNER, THE
"VANCOUVER SUN"

IF there is one country in the world to-day which has found a real job to do and is wholeheartedly doing that job that country is Russia.

I compliment Russia's leaders and I congratulate Russia's people for realising the wisdom and philosophy in the thought that "blessed is the man or country who has found his work."

However one may disagree with part of their technique, no fair-minded person could visit Russia and come away without feeling deep respect for the conception and directness of Government policy and without being impressed with the enthusiasm and pride which the Russian people show in putting their plans into effect.

There is under way in Russia one of the world's greatest booms. It is the same kind of a boom that England enjoyed from 1850 to 1900 when England's industries and world trade were developing.

It is the kind of boom that built California's great cities with their fruit and poultry co-operative and farm associations and tourist trade into the bargain. Scaptics said that California's rapid growth was unaided; that it wouldn't last. But California had the goods: she had rich soil production, oil, warm climate and a large, wealthy population in America to sell to.

Russia has the goods: she has twice the black-soil acreage of the United States, she has coal, oil, lumber, both cold and semi-tropical climates and one hundred and sixty million of her own population to cater to.

Russia's boom will last anyway for 20 to 30 years because the only thing that limits rapid progress and growth is resources and desires. Russia has both. Russia's industrial and soil output to-day, compared with 20 years ago, is phenomenal; yet because of education into higher living standards for the masses and because emphasis for the moment is being put on heavy industries, Russia's appetites and desires for foods and goods is away ahead of her ability to satisfy them.

Russia's educative and economic plans will for years and years keep her people's desires ahead of their ability to supply those increasing appetites. That is why Russia is to be envied.

that is why her business and growth are bound to boom while we in North America and England and other parts of Europe retrogress or stand still.

I feel that the principle of capitalism is a sound one, but capitalism as we have over-emphasised it in the United States and Canada and England curtails production and distribution and thereby prevents the growth of appetites and desires. Where our economy is so wrong is that, as I see it, we emphasise the preservation and turnover of capital instead of emphasising the turnover of goods.

China and India can only in part emulate Russia. India's huge population of 325 million people, living on a dry, hot, inhospitable soil, condemns India to very low living standards. China has the soil but lacks the leadership and political organisation and discipline to conceive and to get things done as Russia is now doing.

A GLOWING FUTURE.

If Canada and England and other nations wish to share in Russia's boom the only way is so to work through credits and trade that Russia shall not be compelled to dump on to the world markets goods and food that could be consumed at home.

With her business growth ahead of her I would say that Russia is the safest credit bet available in the world to-day. As a business man or as a nation I should feel more comfortable having money coming to me from Russia than from any other place on the globe.

Russia has virility, has ability and Russians have tremendous pride in the achievements and obligations of their new regime.

THE SPORTING SPIRIT.

One cannot say this of the many existing Governments and existing debts.

In Canada and the United States we have 12 millions unemployed. While physical suffering is unnecessary, and there is little of it, there is tremendous mental strain and uncertainty about the future. Especially is this true among boys and girls coming out of schools and colleges.

The blame for this is with our leaders, who so far have been unable to conceive a society and an economy that will fit in with our country, our resources, our technology, and with growing world trends. Leaders everywhere must see that conceptions and economies which even 20 years ago were ideal might to-day be hopelessly out of date and useless.

I came to Russia expecting to see depressed and starving people. The day I landed in Moscow was Derby Day.

Fifty thousand people were enjoying horse racing, cheering the winners, placing bets, having drinks and lunches just like any horse racing crowd in America or England.

It is true the clothes and food were not our standard, but the spirit and enjoyment were.

That same evening I went to a Turkey-Russia football game and saw 50,000 young attractive, wholesome and fine-mannered people. Did they enjoy that game? I met the players and the team captains and they were exactly like any of our own sport players, except that they have "thumbed down" the slightest evidence of commercialism in sport. No player can be bonussed or paid or in any way remunerated.

"Our sport is, and is going to stay, strictly amateur," said the Russian football captain. Receipts from that one game totalled over (Continued on Page 5.)

"We are playing the last rubber now, dear. Can't you come down and help with the last test?"

The Very Idea!

HELL BELOW

By Edward "Angel-face" Kelly

EIGHTY tons of bombs! We hate to think what would have happened at the Kowloon fire last week if they had exploded.

Probably the Peninsula Hotel, the Y. M. C. A., and the Empress of Asia would have been blown to smithereens.

Worse still, we may have been blown to smithereens, for we were there.

Imagine the horror of our Public if anything had happened to us. What would have happened to the Telegraph? No wonder the Editor has warned us that we must be more careful in future.

Anyway, just for the purpose of showing you what would have happened if those bombs had exploded we are publishing the reports we would have sent to the Telegraph:

(Special to "Telegraph")

(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraph, Macmillan, 1933. Reprinted, Aug. 28, 1933 p.m.)

Paradise, Aug. 28. We were met at the Golden Gate by the Paradise Philharmonic Harp Band, and an official welcome was extended on behalf of the Government, by His Excellency the O. A. G., Sir Gabriel.

Upon receipt of our halo we requested an interview with the Colonial Secretary, and have elicited the information that the warm welcome we received was extended in view of the fact that we are the first Hongkong visitor yet to arrive.

Pearly Gates, Aug. 29. Mr. Edward Kelly, a recent visitor from Hongkong, has lodged a protest with the government, following the refusal of the Celestial book-keeper, St. Peter, to extend credit facilities.

Close upon the heels of this crisis comes the report that owing to the shortage of water, the authorities have decided to impose restrictions from September 1. It is hoped that the gigantic Shing Mun dash* will be completed next year, thus ending once and for all the acute water problem.—Reuter.

(*Heavenly word for "dam")

Heaven, Aug. 30. Mr. Edward Kelly, the distinguished visitor from Hongkong, as a protest against the action of the authorities in not allowing him to sign chits, departed early this morning.

All flags are flying at half-mast.—Reuter.

Nickelands, Aug. 30. Edward Kelly has arrived.—Reuter.

Paradise, Aug. 30. A grave scandal threatens to rock the country to its very foundations, following a report that six hales, three pairs of wings, five harps, and valuable pearls from the pearly gates are missing. Suspicion attaches to a recent visitor from Hongkong. The government has resigned.—Reuter.

Hades, Sept. 1. At a meeting of the Hades Rate-payers' Association, held yesterday evening, it was decided to forward a petition to the authorities protesting against the coal dump. Speakers pointed out that it was already as hot as Hades, and the action of the authorities was an insult to the intelligence of the residents of the country.

Devil's Gut, Sept. 2. Action is likely to be taken by the authorities to close down all the dancing academies and cabarets in the country, following protests by the factions led by Bluebeard and King Nero. In a manifesto to-day Bluebeard stated that dancing was demoralising the whole community, and residents adjacent to the dance halls could get no sleep because of the constant din. "Our young people are heading straight for earth," he protested.

Lost Angles, Sept. 3.

Edward Kelly, a recent arrival in the Colony, was charged in the Central Magistracy yesterday with offensive behaviour. Police evidence stated that Kelly was drunk and disorderly, and when ordered to work in the stockhold told his captives to "Go to Hell." In his defence, Kelly stated that the summery weather of the past few days had caused him to drink more than he should have. He expressed regret for his lapse.

Defendant was sentenced to seven days imprisonment.—Reuter.

Later. The prisoner Kelly has effected an escape. It is believed that he is heading for Hongkong. The authorities have been warned to keep a strict look-out for this desperate criminal.

CANTON SILK EXHIBITION

OVER 50,000 VISITORS IN TWO DAYS

Canton, Aug. 26. It is reliably reported that over fifty thousand people visited the sericultural exhibit at the Y. M. C. A. on the first two days. Apparently they came on account of curiosity and were not disappointed. The picture is almost complete from mulberry plants to embroideries, hosiery and dresses with a few side lines as well. The only noticeable omission is the weaving process.

On entering one is directed between rows of various kinds of mulberry plants in pots to a display of well over two hundred races and crosses of cocoons each of which apparently differs in some respect from the others. In this room also are a number of kinds of worm specimens—white, yellow, green, spotted, unspotted and tiger striped. Living worms in the various ages from newly hatched to maturity are busy devouring mulberry leaves. The principal diseases are shown in one corner and microscopic examination of moths for pebrine is performed.

Silk testing for evenness and neatness is demonstrated by a machine winding 100 threads of the raw silk per inch on an observation board. Under ultraviolet light cocoons are shown grading from pure white to golden yellow. As side lines are shown fish and chickens which consume the pupae remaining after reeling off the silk and paper made from the mulberry stems cut down to the ground in the winter. Three types of reeling machines are in operation converting the cocoons into the continuous thread of commerce and export. A display of finished silk fabrics and embroideries occupies one large room. A little farther on several girls are at work stitching the intricate patterns of the embroidery. Last of all the visitor is given the chance of seeing a theatrical performance in the afternoon at ten cents admission or a special programme in the evening at twenty cents.

The points of special interest as shown by the crowds of spectators are the places where the actual work is being done by persons. These places are three—moth examination, embroidering and silk reeling. The latter holds most of the crowd. Perhaps unconsciously most of the spectators are fascinated by the working of the process the discovery of which marked the beginning of the silk industry.

The exhibit will be open daily from noon to 10 p.m. until September the second.

The Sincere Co., said that the defendant was indebted to the firm in the sum of $385.28 since December 6, 1932, and had never paid a cent. He produced a bundle of orders signed by the defendant or his wife. Defendant opened his account with the firm on December 6, last year. Witness did not know of defendant's bankruptcy and first heard of it in June or July last.

Tsang Kun-fu, clerk to the Official Receiver, Supreme Court, produced the official file relating to the bankruptcy of Gardner. He stated a receiving order was made in May last, and an adjudication order was made on June 11, 1932. The Official Receiver was appointed trustee of the estate. Witness knew the defendant by sight. No order had yet been made for his discharge.

DEFENDANT'S DUTY.

Mr. Mackinlay submitted that the prosecution had not nearly proved its case. Defendant was charged with obtaining credit. How did one know that the manager, sub-manager, or directors of the firm had had notice regarding Gardner's bankruptcy? The prosecution had to go to prove that the disclosure was not made to someone of the Sincere Co.'s service or agents who was connected with any of the transactions in question.

The magistrate said he did not agree. When defendant started to take credit from the Sincere Co., he was given, in the usual way, a document which he signed, and it was quite clear to any commonsense mind that that was the time to reveal the fact he was in bankruptcy. If he had disclosed it later to any persons connected in these transactions there was an undoubted duty laid on the employees to disclose it to the management or the accountants. If that disclosure had been made it would have been the end

Do you still wish to marry him?

—Yes.

—Yes, Lordship: Before June he didn't say when he would marry you?—No, he never fixed a date.

Why not?—He just promised but did not fix a date.

Asked by His Lordship why she did not ask defendant to fix it, complainant did not reply.

Did you ever tell any one that he had promised to marry you before you went to the hospital in June?—No.

Why didn't you tell your mother?—Because I was afraid she might scold me for being engaged to be married.

Why should she scold you?—I cannot explain.

Can you give no reason for not telling anyone?—No.

FELL IN LOVE.

Cross-examined by Mr. D'Almada senior, witness said: I went often to Mr. Sivanni's flat to see his wife, and I occasionally met members of the Peninsula Band who were staying there. Defendant did not stay at the flat until the middle of January and I was introduced to him first in February. I fell in love with defendant during our acquaintance and we first had relations on February 5th. The only other occasion intimacy took place was on February 8.

On the 5th they had been talking about love together and he then made suggestions saying that he would marry her.

Mr. D'Almada: How often did he say that?—Witness: He was always saying it.

NO LETTERS.

Did he ever take you out?—No, not even to the cinema.

Did he ever write any letters to you?—No.

When did you first inform your mother of this promise?—In June after I had come from the hospital and found out my condition. My mother became very angry and said she would insist on defendant marrying me.

In answer to another question, witness stated: One day in June I went to Mr. Sivanni's flat with my mother and she said to defendant: "You have disgraced my daughter. I want you to marry her."

MOTHER'S STORY.

Viviana Bautista, mother of the plaintiff gave corroborative evidence.

Cross-examined by Mr. D'Almada she said she did not know that her daughter frequented Mrs. Sivanni's flat or she would not have allowed it.

When she interviewed defendant about the question of marriage, he protested and said he was "not the first man." She thought defendant was "fooling" her daughter and sent her son round to try and force him to marry.

David Bautista, brother, said he was a patient at the Kowloon Hospital but as soon as he heard that his sister was in trouble he obtained leave. He gave evidence of his interviews with defendant in the presence of his mother but denied that the latter sent him to force the marriage on Rull. Defendant admitted parentage and said he would consult his brother on the question of marrying the girl.

"DEATH IS NO MORE THAN THE REMOVAL OF EARTHLY LIMITATIONS". —Dr. A. T. Bennett-Haines.

The R.M.S. "Empress of Canada" left Kobe yesterday at 7 p.m. is due at Shanghai to-morrow at 6 p.m., and leaves Shanghai on Wednesday at 4 p.m. for Hongkong and Manila.

Two returned banished, Wong Sang and Wong Kam-sing, were sentenced to a year each at the Kowloon Magistracy this morning by Mr. Butters. Both were banished for 10 years, the latter being sent away only in February this year.

Chan Sang, who was banished in 1931 for ten years stated before Mr. Wynne-Jones in the Central Police Court this morning that he returned to settle some outstanding accounts. Defendant was sent to prison for four months. Inspector Vincent said that defendant was a mendicant banished.

Chan Tak arrested in Sai Wan Ho with possession of 140 taels of raw opium was fined $4,000 or ten months hard labour by Mr. Schofield, at the Central Magistracy this morning. Wong Lan, female, was fined $1,000 or five months hard labour for possession of 50 taels of raw opium in Queen's Road, West.

A Chinese boatman who concealed eleven gallons of Chinese spirits at the bottom of his sampan was fined $280 or two months by Mr. Wynne-Jones in the Central Police Court this morning. The boat was ordered to be confiscated. Revenue Officer A. W. Gurnitt said that the defendant was found alongside the wharf at Canton Road, West.

INSULT ARRESTED.

FURTHER ATTEMPTS AT EXTRADITION.

Athens, Aug. 26. Samuel Insull, Senior, has been arrested. The American Government has formally requested his extradition based on a new indictment charging him with violation of the bankruptcy laws.

An official of the United States Attorney General's office has arrived here from Washington in connexion with the request.—Reuter.

Washington, Aug. 26. The United States Government has decided to demand the extradition of Samuel Insull, the London-born ex-millionaire, who has been in exile in Greece since last October when the Greek courts refused to grant his extradition to America to meet charges of embezzlement and larceny.

Officials of the State Department are reticent as to the grounds for a fresh application.—Reuter.

EXPRESS WRECKED IN HURRICANE

TWO KILLED IN U.S.A.

The Southern Railway crack express, Crescent Limited, running between New York and New Orleans, was derailed near Tuxedo by the hurricane which swept the eastern shores of the United States last week.

The gale which had been lashing the coast for over a week, swept inland on Thursday, and caused the derailment. Two drivers were killed. Part of the train fell over an embankment and many were injured.

Later he said he would wait until the child was born.

In reply to the Judge, Mr. Dennis submitted that the whole of the circumstances, including the giving up of the job and the reasons plaintiff gave for her action must be taken into consideration as corroboration.

PLAINTIFF RECALLED.

On this question, plaintiff was recalled.

She first said she gave up her job because she thought she was conceited but after considerable pressure admitted that the real reason was that the work was too hard for her. Defendant had nothing to do with this.

His Lordship: That falls to the ground as corroborative evidence.

Mr. Dennis submitted that the evidence of the subsequent promise and the admission of paternity were sufficient corroboration of the girl's otherwise unsupported evidence of the prior promise.

Mr. D'Almada submitted that there was no case to answer. After quoting authorities he stated that there was no material evidence of corroboration. The promise which the defendant was alleged to have made amounted to this: "If you will come to bed with me I will marry you."

That was absolutely bad in law because it was immoral. The later evidence was that defendant refused to marry her.

His Lordship giving judgment for the defendant with costs, said: "I do not find in the evidence before me any sufficient legal corroboration of the plaintiff's story."

FLOOD HAVOC

YELLOW RIVER DOING GREAT DAMAGE

Nanking, Aug. 27. The Yellow River flood has now assumed frightful dimensions. Refugees in "Western Shantung" alone reach 8,000,000 and over 800 villages have been inundated.

This estimate is given by the Civil Governor of Shantung who yesterday made an aerial survey of the flooded area.

Anxiety is felt for the safety of foreigners living outside Kailong.

In the event of the dykes breaking, it has been arranged that anti-guns will be fired, so that foreigners and villagers may escape to the city where, it is hoped, the city wall will temporarily prevent the inundation of the city.—Reuter.

Tsainan in Danger.

Tsainan, Aug. 26. Tsainan's half-million inhabitants are growing every moment more apprehensive, as a rise of only two inches in the level of the Yellow River will mean an incalculable disaster.

Fervent efforts are being made to bolster up the defences against floods.

Shanghai Distress.

KULIANG HUMOUR

HOW "TAX" ISSUE WAS OVERCOME

The summer season is nearly over, and a few lines should be written to tell how Kuliang has been appreciated this year. The weather has been all that holiday-makers could desire, and more than they usually dare to hope. Since the beginning of July there has been very little rain, and no typhoon has come (up to the date of writing) to try the nerves of the timorous and to gladden the hearts of the local masons and carpenters (who seem to spring up like mushrooms when repairs are needed). There has been very little thunder until the last week or so, when one or two severe but brief thunderstorms visited us. In short, so far, Kuliang has enjoyed almost uniformly fine weather. Of course the farmers do not like the long drought, but there was enough rain in the spring to ensure a fairly good first crop, and so there is no danger of any serious shortage. Those who have visited Kuliang for the first time this year, will probably wish to come again.

COMMUNICATIONS.

The road connecting Foochow (East Gate) with the foot of Kuliang has now been completed—at least, sufficiently to permit of traffic; the surface on that part nearest Foochow city leaves much to be desired, but Chinese chauffeurs do not seem easily daunted. It is only a ten or fifteen minutes run in a car from the East Gate to the foot of the mountain, and less than half an hour from Nantai (where most of the foreigners live, south of the Min River). A good walker can walk up from the foot to the Kuliang settlement in 1½ hours or less, and down in forty minutes. So Kuliang is now separated from Nantai by only one or two hours. The road connecting Foochow with the Pagoda Anchorage is nearing completion, and soon those who wish to do so will be able to travel all the way from the Anchorage to the foot of Kuliang by car, in less than an hour.

POPULATION.

Partly owing to the increasing ease of communication, the summer population of Kuliang is becoming more Chinese. This year the Provincial Chairman, General Chiang Kuang-nai, the Head of the XIXth Army, General Tsai Ting-kai, and quite a number of other officials, have been spending shorter or longer periods on the mountain. It has been interesting for the foreigners to see these "great men" and to note that, dressed as they are in quite ordinary garb, they do not present any very remarkable appearance, some of them even looking almost insignificant. They are not attended, when travelling, by any sort of bodyguard (at least not visibly), but an unusually large number of police and gendarmes (if these words properly represent the "Public Safety Bureau" and the "Peace Preservation Corps") are in evidence on the mountain this year, especially in the neighbourhood of the houses occupied by the officials.

The foreign population of Kuliang is, however, quite up to, if not above, the normal, and very few indeed of the cottages are unoccupied.

TAXES.

In order to defray part of the cost of the police mentioned above the Provincial Government have made an attempt to impose a house tax on all summer residents on Kuliang, whether Chinese or foreign, at the rate of 2% of the rent payable on each house. After repeated and prolonged discussion and negotiation through the British and American Consuls, in the course of which it was pointed out that the Chinese Government has no right to impose any tax on foreigners who enjoy extra territorial rights, and the Chinese authorities explained that the word translated "tax" in their proclamation should have been translated "voluntary contribution"—it was at last agreed that householders might pay "such voluntary contributions" to the Kuliang Club at a flat rate of three dollars per house. This has been done (by the great majority of residents) and everyone seems satisfied by the compromise.

A chair tax has also been imposed, ten cents on every trip up or down the mountain. This is being paid without serious protest (as far as I know) by all concerned.

Tennis has been as popular as usual, and thanks to the good weather the tennis courts have been very lively every day. The tournament attracted many entries, and is being put through in good time. So far the Singles and Ladies Doubles have been decided, Miss Helen Smith being the winner in the Ladies Singles, with Miss A. L. Richards as runner-up, and Mr. J. A. Pilley winning the Men's Singles, with Rev. E. Pearce Hayes as runner-up. Miss Richards and Miss M. Smith won the Ladies Doubles, with Mrs. Lloyd and Miss A. Campbell as runners-up.

Recreation Club sent up ten players for the annual Foochow-Kuliang Tennis match, which was played in glorious weather. The result was a win for Kuliang by three matches to two, although Foochow won ten sets to Kuliang's nine, and ninety-seven games to Kuliang's ninety. The return match was played on Aug. 17 on the Foochow Recreation Club Ground. It began in rain, but fortunately this soon stopped, and the match could be played out. The result was again a win for Kuliang by three matches to two, and Kuliang also won both on sets (nine to seven) and games (seventy-seven to sixty-five).

Other amusements and activities have included "Recognition Picnics" to enable residents to meet one another, Concerts (which show that this year Kuliang musical talent is certainly well up to the average), a Reading of Shakespeare's "Midsummer Night's Dream," countless hikes and outings (to Kuliang Peak to see the sunrise, to Moon Temple to enjoy the moonlight, and so on). A Garden Fete organised by Bishop and Mrs. Hind in aid of the Foochow Native Hospital brought in $450 and also furnished a splendid opportunity for friendly intercourse and amusement on Saturday, August 6.

The Convention speaker this year was the Rev. John Foster, of Union Theological College, Canton, who gave a series of unusually arresting and stimulating addresses on the general subject "Our Experience of God in Christ." The attendance during the days on which he spoke (Aug. 6 to 11) was remarkably large, and the speaker seemed to appeal to all those who were present, perhaps more especially to the younger members of the community. "Convention Week" was brought to a conclusion, as usual, by the United Communion Service on Sunday afternoon, which was this year conducted by Rev. E. S. Burke, of the American Baptist Mission.

The Cantata is a synonym for the pinnacle of musical endeavour and achievement each year at Kuliang. This year the untiring energy of Mrs. Stockwell and the other members of the Music Committee have resulted in an unusually impressive rendering of Handel's "The Messiah" (Selections), by a choir of over sixty voices, the solo parts being taken by Mrs. Scott, Mrs. Vlassoff, the Misses Ericson and Dow, and Messrs. Farley, Culver, and Griffiths. Miss Nora Arrowsmith and Miss Imogene Ward accompanying. It would, in fact, be difficult to find a holiday resort anywhere to challenge Kuliang, and the only regret is that holidays, like other good things, must come to an end. —Our Own Correspondent.

Barnes' office to compare it with the layout he had prepared. Then Miss James, head of the glove department, called up to ask for Mr. Barnes. Informed that he had not yet reached the office, she asked if Eve would come to her department to see some new gloves that she was eager to have advertised in the Times next morning.

When Eve returned to the office 20 minutes later Miss Allen was nowhere in sight. "Tell you all about it at lunch," promised Arlene, looking up from her typing.

"It was this way," she said gleefully after they had given their orders at the fifth floor tea room. "Barnes came in while you were talking to Miss James. He gave Marya and Miss Allen and me a cool, distant good morning as if we were molecules and sailed right through to his office and slammed the door."

"I think that dashed the new siren a little, but not for long. She took out the good old paint box and revised her face some, and was about ready to go into conference with the boss when little me barged in ahead of her with a message. While I was there I thought I might as well call his attention to the fact that your former desk had become a dumping ground for this and that and should I have Charles clear it out so the new girl would have a place to park her vanity case. He grinned and agreed it was a good idea and I should go ahead. Then I happened to remember that Mr. Bixby wanted to see him. He stopped a moment on his way out to tell our new playmate to browse around the store this morning and take notes on anything she saw that seemed interesting and that by the time she got back Charles would have a desk cleared for her. Then he said you and I should make out a new schedule of lunch periods so one of us would be on hand all the time to take care of phone calls."

Eve did not tell Dick that evening of her unpleasant encounter with the new girl. She owed it to him, she felt, to keep their first week together free from office gossip and office cares. But she was uneasy. Mona Allen was not one who would easily forget a defeat. She would try to make trouble in some way, Eve was very sure.

CINEMA SCREENINGS

NOTES SUPPLIED BY THE THEATRES

There are types that filmgoers seldom see, incidents that will appear like living pages from the Arabian Nights, customs that derive from the dim North African past in "Baroud," Rex Ingram's first talking picture, which is released by Ideal Films Ltd., now showing at the King's Theatre.

In this exciting and heart-stirring picture, the producer of "The Four Horsemen" has brought to the screen a variety of types of glamorous diversity. His Moroccan chieftains, his bandits, sand-diviners, street-sellers, nomads of the desert, bring the indubitable, authentic East to the screen.

None, assuredly, could have been more fitted to interpret the East for the talking film than the man who has lived for years in North Africa and understands their mentality and philosophy, a man whose name is associated with the screen's most spectacular triumphs.

"Baroud," which is the love story of a French officer of Spahis and Zineb, daughter of a Moroccan Caid, may be described as bringing to life an authentic "Song of Araby." Its actors are numbered by the thousand, its settings are such as, in the words of Rex Ingram, to create within the heart of the onlooker an intense desire to visit the localities pictured. There are love sequences, one of them set in a narrow, high-walled by-way of Marrakech; that are certain to open the floodgates of emotion whilst the lovely and appropriate notes of a Berber love song run through the story like a golden thread.

"Baroud," based upon a theme with a universal appeal, is likely to arouse excited controversy. The love of the Frenchman for a daughter of Islam; the attempt to surmount the barriers of nationality and faith at the behest of the call of the heart, is the central theme of a picture that is said to be worthy of its producer's reputation and utterly unlike any talking film so far made.

"To-Night is Ours"

Claudette Colbert and Frederic March are co-starring in "To-Night is Ours," screen adaptation of the romantic play by Noel Coward, which opened yesterday at the Queen's Theatre. It marks the first appearance of March on the screen since he won the award of the Motion Picture Academy of Arts and Sciences for the best performance of 1932.

The witty but romantic flavour of "Private Lives," a sensational movie success, best-known of Coward's plays, characterizes "To-Night is Ours." It too is a story of clever, amusing people, outwardly glib but actually devoted and tender toward each other.

Miss Colbert is cast as a girl who has thrown aside the responsibilities of a kingdom for a fling at Paris, and March as a young, wealthy Parisian who insists on taking the fling with her. Together they race playfully through the French capital, fully enjoying the pleasures of the town, but more fully enjoying each other.

Their moments alone are moments of tender, deep-flowing passion. A strange trick of the fates almost upsets their lives, but a surprising, dramatic climax sets everything to rights.

Allison Skipworth, veteran stage actress who has scored brilliant success in character roles in "If I Had a Million," "Night After Night," and "Madame Racketeer," heads the supporting cast. Others in featured roles are Arthur Byron and Paul Cavanagh.

"Lucky Devils"

Thrill is a by-word of Hollywood stunt men. Courageously, they brave every conceivable hazard, risking their lives and limbs to crash automobiles into plate glass; fight on foot-wide, prison walls; swing across buildings; fight on burning roofs; and tumble fifty feet to earth through a skylight.

Bill Boyd employs his virile physique and personality with realism in a sincere, convincing portrayal. As Skipper, head stunt man, he saves an "extra" girl from suicide. Upsetting his theory that stunts and romance do not mix, he marries her. He acquires a fear of death and loses his nerve. He works as a day labourer, and eventually becomes dependent when his wife anticipates a baby; he is penniless.

A stunting job is available. He undertakes the execution of a death ride in a tense dramatic climax which kept an audience glued to the edge of the seats.

Dorothy Wilson, recently soaring to prominence as the RKO-Radio stenographer featured in "The Age of Consent," gives an able dramatic portrayal as Skipper's wife. Wm. Gargan, stage star, whose recent role in "The Animal Kingdom" added to his laurels, is well cast as a member of the "Lucky Devils" club. Roscoe Ates, William Bakewell, Julie Haydon and others are featured.

"Cynara"

Ronald Colman has no intention of retiring. His season's work that saw the completion of King Vidor's picturisation of the international stage success, "Cynara," which Samuel Goldwyn will present at the King's Theatre on Wednesday and the forthcoming "The Masquerader," makes his future more assured.

"The Devil is Driving"

Construction of a seven story ramp up, which automobiles could be driven gave Paramount set designers and engineers one of the toughest problems they have ever faced.

The ramp was needed for scenes in "The Devil is Driving," drama set in a garage which is used as headquarters by an organized auto-theft ring. "The Devil is Driving" comes to the Queen's Theatre on Thursday. Edmund Lowe, Wynne Gibson, James Gleason, Lois Wilson, Dickie Moore and Allan Dinehart play the leading roles in the picture.

The garage required for the picture was to be eight stories high, with a ramp connecting the various floors.

While the ostensible purpose of the structure was to serve as a "front" for operations of the gang, and for an elaborate speakeasy located on the top, according to specifications of the script.

The seven floors of such a setting had to be constructed separately, and not one above the other, inasmuch as only one could be shown on the screen at a time. But, in "The Devil is Driving," the camera follows stolen cars as they come in on the ground floor, and speed up the ramp to the seventh, where they are rebuilt so that they cannot be recognized.

The problem was solved by constructing a portable two-story ramp, which was moved from one setting to the other, as each became the centre for action. It was so designed that it ran one story below, and one story above the settings. To show a car going up all seven stories, it was only necessary to photograph it speeding up the ramp to the settings, representing each floor; then join the seven separate shots in consecutive order.

Edmund Lowe has the principal role in "The Devil is Driving." He is cast as an easy-going, wise-cracking mechanic, who drops his good-nature when his nephew is seriously injured by the gang, and the boy's father is murdered when he seeks revenge. Lowe, assisted by Wynne Gibson, then goes on a rampage that produces breathless, dramatic results.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

By W. E. McKenney

When auction was at its peak you will recall partners bidding back and forth between themselves, each believing that the hand should be played in his suit. To-day in contract we realize that those were mis-fit hands.

Remember this: when you bid a suit and re-bid it in the face of partner's continual re-bidding of the suit he has named, neither of you making any attempt to show another suit—you must stop to analyze whether your hand may be of any benefit to your partner before making your fourth bid.

If you find that it is going to be impossible for partner to get into your hand, and that your hand will be of no benefit to him—then you may again re-bid your suit. Otherwise you should pass. Few good players got into trouble with the following mis-fit hand because they were quick to realize what was wrong.

The Bidding
South, the dealer, passed. West bid one heart. East one spade. West two hearts. East two spades, and West bid three hearts. This bid of three hearts definitely shows West with a good suit of at least six cards in length. East bid three spades.

The beginner at contract would make the mistake of bidding four hearts with the West hand for two reasons: first, because he is void of spades; and second, because he holds 100 honours in hearts.

His partner, by bidding spades three times, definitely told him that the hand was a mis-fit. If West should bid four hearts, his partner's hand is very apt to be worthless to him due to the fact that West does not hold a spade. West with his two aces can feel confident that his partner has an entry into his hand to use some of his high cards, therefore he should pass.

Three spades can easily be made, while with good defence West cannot make even one heart. As long as North and South are careful not to lead a spade all the tricks that West, the declarer, can possibly make are five heart tricks and the ace of clubs.

POLICE QUALIFY FOR AWARD OF MERIT

A successful examination for carried out at Clearwater Bay on direction of S.I. Hunt taking part.

The test comprised saving a surface of the water; diving for an object; surface diving and high diving.

In addition the candidates had to select three movements in scientific diving, and the tests made were of the long plunge, sculling feet first, revolving on the surface of the water and porpoise
diving.

The following qualified in all tests: S.I. David Loie, P.C. R51
Chek Pui-sai, P.C. R55 Wong

THIEFS CAUGHT BY D.W.

ATTEMPT TO SNATCH PEN FRUSTRATED

While the "Maidens Festival Exhibition" was in progress on the roof garden of the Sincere Company on Saturday night, a Chinese shop boy had his fountain pen snatched from his jacket pocket by an unemployed Shang-haiese, who passed it to another man. Two district watchmen who witnessed this arrested the two men.

The defendants appeared before
Mr. Wynne-Jones in the Central Police Court this morning, when the Shanghai man was sent to prison for four months' hard labour.

The receiver, who alleged he was arrested merely because the watchmen knew he had a previous conviction, denied the charge and was remanded until to-morrow.

The first defendant was stated to have carried a jacket over his right arm and passed his left arm across underneath the jacket and extracted the pen.

CITY ROBBERY SEQUEL

TWO MEN AGAIN IN COURT

Lau Hung-yuet, shop foki, and Wu Shu-ming, unemployed, made another formal appearance before
Mr. Wynne-Jones in the Central Police Court this morning charged in connection with the robbery of $3,700 in money and a quantity of jewellery from 276, Des Voeux
Road Central, on July 17.

On the application of Det-Insp.
M. Murphy, the accused were formally remanded to Thursday, when it is expected a date will be fixed for the hearing of the case.

The case is a sequel to one of the most daring raids within City limits for some considerable time past. The robbers resorted to a terrible threat when pouring kerosene oil over their victims,
they threatened to set them alight.

The affair took place in the Chuen Hing piece-goods shop situated a short distance beyond the World Theatre and the big Chinese emporiums and yielded a record haul in cash and jewellery assessed at between $10,000 and $11,000.

A treacherous employee, who decamped with the gunmen, shortly after 3 o'clock opened the door and admitted six men. They brought an armory of seven guns to bear on the shopkeeper, his numerous family, and three other fokis. Each man also held a dagger.

TAXATION PROTESTS.

FRENCH COLONIALS BREAK
OPEN PRISON.

Paris, Aug. 27.
Following popular discontent
about the increase of local taxes, disorders are reported from the French Islands of St. Pierre and Miquelon, off the Canadian Coast.
The police on the islands were powerless to prevent a mob breaking into the prison and releasing four men who were previously arrested during a demonstration outside the Government buildings.

The French cruiser Den-trocheaux has anchored in the roadstead in response to an appeal from the local authorities.
Later reports received here state that order has been restored in the Colony.

Printed and Published for the Proprietors by FRANKLIN FRANKLIN at 1 and 8, Wyndham Street, in the City of Victoria, HONGKONG.
